CHARGES REDS ARE DISRUPTING WAR SHIPMENTS

Bares Activities of Maritime Union.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 19.—Local Communist agitators and their Red comrades within the National Maritime union are busy on the New York waterfront again. Their efforts are disrupting this country's vital supply line to our own troops abroad and to our allies.

Joseph P. Ryan.

These were the charges of Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's association. Ryan bluntly accused the Communist groups of trying to raid his organization under the respectable cover of the Russian war effort.

According to Ryan, whose union has stood out as a strong bulwark against the Communist drive to gain complete control of the vital shipping industry, the organizing activities of the Reds were interfering with the loading of army transports and cargo vessels here in the North Atlantic ports.

75,000 Longshoremen Busy.

Seventy-five thousand longshoremen in Ryan's union are daily engaged in a mammoth effort to fill the holds of ships with guns, food, tanks, bullets, and airplanes. These are the ships which go into convoys bound over the stormy waters of the Atlantic for ports in Africa, Murmansk, Liverpool, and other strategic theaters of the global war.

The aim of the Communists is to gain control of the east coast longshoremen and place them under the notorious west coast radical, Harry Bridges. Atty. Gen. Francis Biddle ruled several months ago that Bridges should be deported as a Communist alien.

Ryan recalled the Communist activities of the National Maritime union and Bridges in the past, predicting that if for some reason or other Russia gets out of the war, the Communist controled unions would oppose the American war program.

Once Picketed White House.

Leaders of the NMU, which is headed by Joseph Curran, bosom buddy of Bridges, followed the Moscow line before Hitler attacked Russia. They violently opposed the war as "imperialistic" and "capitalistic," even picketing the White House voicing those sentiments. But ever since Russia became embroiled the NMU leaders have been all out for the war and especially loud in their demands for a second front to relieve the Red army.

While the NMU is a big industrial union of men who go to sea, the deckhands, stewards, oilers, wipers, etc., it is linked to Bridges' stevedores and shore workers thru the common denominator of communism among the leaders. The Reds need the whip hand over the dock workers if they are to have complete control over the shipping industry.

Charges Pledges Violated.

"The NMU has directly violated pledges to President Roosevelt not to do any raiding of rival union organizations during the war, the promises given by CIO President Philip Murray and President William Green of

Many Suburbs Order Schools Closed.

Chicago and the metropolitan area shivered thru bitter below zero temperatures last night and the mercury was expected to sink to a low of 15 degrees below this morning at 3 a. m. today the official temperature had dropped to 12 below zero in Chicago.

Slight relief is in sight this forenoon, when the temperature is expected to rise to 12 above, but it is expected to get colder again this afternoon and by late evening the mercury is slated to be down near zero again.

Eight Deaths Laid to Cold.

The cold was general thruout the midwest, and at least eight deaths were attributed to the low temperatures. Minnesota hit a frigid jackpot with 51 below zero. Minneapolis recorded 29 below. Kansas City, Mo., had 12 below zero, the coldest in 18 years. New Mexico had some of the lowest temperatures in its history, 25 below zero at McGaffey on the continental divide, 22 below at Raton, and 11 below at Santa Fe.

Winds strong enough to drift the snow will continue until the temperature begins to rise, H. L. Jacobson, the forecaster, said. Reported temperatures in the metropolitan area ranged from 22 below at Glenview to 5 below at Joliet. Other subzero readings were Waukegan, 14; Deerfield, 15; Evanston, 12; Oak Park, 9; Park Ridge, 18, and Gary, 12.

Rural Schools to Close.

All schools in Skokie, Northfield, Northbrook, Wheeling, Niles, Elmwood Park, Bedford Park, Argo, Evergreen Park, North Chicago, and Waukegan, however, will be closed today, officials said. Schools in Gary and northern Indiana also will close. Elementary schools in Calumet City, Cicero, and Brookfield will not open. All others will be open, according to present plans.

Public schools in Chicago will remain open, William H. Johnson, superintendent, said. Parochial school authorities had made no decision late last night.

Noble J. Puffer and W. C. Petty, superintendents of schools in Cook and Lake counties, respectively, both advised schools under their jurisdiction to close.

Snow Drifts Block Roads.

Roads were blocked and other transportation facilities crippled thruout northern Illinois and adjoining states when a strong wind began drifting the snow early Monday night and the mercury took a sudden dive of 23 degrees in eight hours. Yesterday was the coldest day so far this year.

Impassable country roads threatened Waukegan with a milk shortage. Chicago dealers expect no shortage today.

Roads leading to war plants in the outskirts of Chicago were almost completely blocked thruout the day. Many small plants were forced to virtually suspend production because workers either were unable to report for duty or were many hours late.

Maintenance crews worked all day to keep the roads clear to the larger plants, but high winds and the eight inch snowfall of the last few days combined to reblock the streets soon after snowplows passed.

Street car and bus lines were unable to maintain schedules because of the snow and stalled automobiles.

Blames WPB 'Red Tape' in Big Beef Loss

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 19 [Special].—Amos Grant, Omaha realtor and cattle owner, charged today that war production board "red tape and sleepy indifference" had cost him and other stockmen tons of beef which could have gone to the army and navy.

Grant charged—and presented letters backing his charges—that because he could not obtain three small metal valves weighing less than two pounds, scabies spread to 410 of his cattle and to many owned by his neighbors. He said several of his cattle died and others lost as much as 250 pounds in weight.

Grant said scabies appeared among his cattle last November, and the herd was quarantined by a federal inspector. Grant was told the cattle would have to be dipped in a solution kept at 95 to 105 degrees.

Needs Three Small Valves.

He said he obtained a second hand tank, but could not use it until three small valves were obtained. He related he applied to the local WPB office and was given an application blank, which he promptly mailed.

The form was returned in a few days from Washington, D. C., with a note advising him he should have made out three applications, one for each valve. Grant then filled out three forms and attached a letter explaining the need for speed.

The applications came back, Grant said, because he had neglected to put a date on them.

Awaits Action 14 Days.

Grant hastily filled in the dates and rushed the blanks to Washington. There they lay for 14 days before authorization to buy the parts was given. And all the time the parts had been on hand in a local dealer's stock.

In the meantime the scabies had spread to 410 of his cattle, Grant related, and to herds of his neighbors he had agreed to dip.

"The whole trouble," he charged, "was that the local WPB office had no authority to pass on the request."

'Shooting General' Dodges Japanese Bullets as Yanks Capture Hill X on Guadalcanal

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GUADALCANAL, Solomon Islands, Jan. 12 [Delayed].—The traditional place for a general is some miles behind the lines, where he directs the battle from the safety of his own quarters. According to what I saw today, the proper place for a general is sitting in a fox hole atop a newly captured hill, while Jap snipers send greetings whining overhead.

There is no long distance directing by Maj. Gen. Joseph Lawton Collins of New Orleans, La., 46 years old, once known as the "boy colonel."

After a difficult climb over a sun-baked series of hills and valleys I finally reached the top of hill X, a few miles west of Henderson airfield. There, watching his troops advance thru field glasses, then telephoning directions to various subcommanders, was Gen. Collins.

"You ought to write a story about the capture of this hill. It was a hell of a fine job," he said.

Planes Plaster Hill.

I suggested he describe the feat, so he continued:

"Our men came across that burned area on our right front," he said, "and the Japs were on this ridge. Four of our men came up the left side of the hill, and thru glasses I saw them throw grenades over the top of the hill. Then Jap mortar shells fell behind them and they fell back. Then another group charged up the other flank to a point where that shelter tent now stands [pointing to a tent a couple of hundred yards below us] and they also caught mortar fire and fell back.

"So they concentrated on this hill with army Airacobras, dropping six 500-pound bombs and scoring two direct hits. Then they plastered the thing with artillery fire."

At this juncture there was a sudden burst of firing from the crest of the hill, a few yards behind us, where soldiers crouched in machine gun and automatic rifle emplacements. But this was nothing to ruffle the general.

Japs Are Tired Out.

"Have they something to shoot at?" he asked, and an officer went to find out.

"Finally," Gen. Collins continued with his account of the battle, "they charged and took the hill at 4:30 on the afternoon of Jan. 10. The Japs were so worn out and tired that one stood with a hand grenade poised, but was unable to throw it. One of our soldiers stepped in and bayoneted him.

"During our charge, I had my glasses right on one man when a mortar shell dropped just behind him. Instead of falling back, he leaned over, apparently reloading a clip; fixed his bayonet, and charged over the hill. I told them to find out who he is. I'll see that he gets the D. S. C."

Gen. Collins showed various positions on his aerial map.

"We have blocks established here and there," he said. "And the Japs are in a pocket, ringed in. Whatever Japs are in there—their goose is cooked."

Collins, occasionally crouching low when bullets sang over us to the opposite side of the crest, resumed his observation of troops advancing to their next objective—Hill Y—and telephoned suggestions to Brig. Gen. John R. Hodge of Carbondale, Ill.

"He's joined up, all right," Collins said of Hodge. "I can see that from here. But I can't see whether he has extended his line, as ordered to do yesterday."

Wounded Present Problem.

"It's a hell of a problem trying to evacuate the wounded," said the general. "At one place we had to bring them to the forks of the Matanikau river, and then take them out by boat. We cleared the stream and built a trail for the use of our wounded before the attack. You know, more campaigns fail because of faulty logistics than poor fighting."

A bullet from a Jap sniper's gun whined close by, and Collins said "Who-o-o!" and ducked low for a moment.

The outfit which stormed the hill was commanded by Col. George Washington Bush. Capt. Paul Mellichamp of Somerville, S. C., Gen. Collins' aide, arrived from a mission assigned by Collins, and reported that he had killed a Jap.

"Congratulations," said Collins, shaking hands with his aide. "I'm going down later to see whether I got the Jap I shot at yesterday. I saw him down there and poured eight shots in. There was no more fire from him."

Pvt. Hugh D. Pless, 21 years old, of 1421 East Sixtieth street; Capt. Edward Kaulakis of 1815 Marquette boulevard, and Pvt. Tom Brady, 28 years old, of Aurora, were in this outfit.

Lt. Ivan Wentworth-Rohr, 24 years old, of Honolulu, a former Chicagoan, and I headed back. "The general's a damned good man," said Wentworth-Rohr. "All the men love him because he's up there where there's shooting."

IT'S TOUGH SLEDDING RACING STORK IN ZERO COLD—BUT WORTH IT!

Walter L. Mitchell of Crystal Lake yesterday attempted the use of five modes of transportation in a race to get his wife, Florence, to an Elgin hospital before the birth of their baby.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell prepared to leave their farm home at 4:30 a. m. The prospective father hurried to the garage, where he found he could not start the family car. The tractor also refused to operate. Mitchell started to hitch a team to a bobsled but the sled's runners were out of order. He finally hitched the team to a wagon, into which he placed his wife and a load of warm blankets.

A mile from the farm, on route 31, they met the ambulance for which Mitchell had telephoned. Mrs. Mitchell was transferred and the ambulance started on the 16 mile trip to the hospital, only to be blocked by snow three miles farther. The vehicle was turned around and headed for Mrs. Mitchell's parents' town house in Crystal Lake. At 7 a. m. a seven pound girl was born. Mrs. Mitchell is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Herendeen.

EX-MOVIE STAR REPORTED HELD IN SHOOTING CASE

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 19 (AP).—A woman identified by Police Inspector Frank Lucey as Madge Bellamy, star of silent films, was arrested tonight after officers said she fired three shots at A. Stanwood Murphy, socially prominent lumberman, in the courtyard of a fashionable club on Nob hill.

Murphy was not injured. The woman, who told police she was enraged because Murphy recently married another woman, was booked on charges of assault with a deadly weapon. She gave her age as 35.

Murphy declined to talk to reporters. He told Inspector Lucey he had known Miss Bellamy three or four years. Police said the woman told them she had waited several hours in front of the Pacific Union club and had fired at Murphy when he left the club.

Cite Need for Allied Leader in North Africa

LONDON, Jan. 19 (AP).—The rapid telescoping of the Tunisian and Libyan fronts is hastening the day when the allies must decide on a supreme commander for the showdown with the axis in North Africa, military observers believe.

The question of who will lead the allied armies in the event Marshal Erwin Rommel flees with his forces into Tunisia was regarded as one calling for a decision by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill. Observers believed preliminary discussions already are under way.

Tunisia is the theater of United States Lt. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery heads the British 8th army chasing Rommel, but some think Gen. Harold Alexander, British commander in the middle east and Montgomery's superior, might be invited to take over.

New Algeria Governor.

London is unlikely to suggest a change in the command in Tunisia even tho the British 8th army moves in and the British outnumber the Americans.

A further shuffling of the political picture was reported when the Morocco radio announced that Marcel Peyrouton, a former Vichy collaborationist, had been appointed governor general of Algeria, replacing Yves Chatel.

The Fighting French at once jumped on the appointment, calling Peyrouton a former Fascist sympathizer, and the Daily Herald called it a "political blunder of the first water."

"Peyrouton is distrusted by Frenchmen of all parties, detested by the Arab population and loathed by De Gaulle and his colleagues," the newspaper said. "A worse choice could not have been made."

Tortured Many Thousands.

"It is impossible to estimate how many thousand French patriots were sent to prison and tortured by Peyrouton during his tenure of office as chief of Vichy police and minister of the interior," said a spokesman for the Fighting French.

Their spokesman also accused Robert Murphy, President Roosevelt's diplomatic representative in North Africa, of refusing to listen to French republicans and being surrounded by former collaborationist advisers.

COMMONS HEARS ATTLEE

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Deputy Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee made the government's statement on the war situation to parliament when it reassembled today.

He explained that the delay of the British 8th army's final assault to crush Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces in Libya was due to the unprecedented length of the lines of communication and to bad weather, which had bogged down the allied tanks.

Attlee's most interesting statement was that, "altho it is natural that French affairs should not always appear in the same light to two nations," Britain fully indorsed the American political arrangements with Vichy, ending in Lt. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's appointment of Adm. Jean Darlan and the full cooperation "of French civil authorities" in North Africa, which already has resulted in "French troops fighting alongside ours in Tunisia."

Soviet Question Raised.

A question was introduced asking whether the government is willing to consider giving the soviet government representation on Gen. Eisenhower's staff in North Africa, similar to that held by Resident Minister Harold MacMillan for Britain and by Robert Murphy for the United States.

Attlee also was asked what progress has been made toward the release of "anti-Fascist" elements imprisoned by the Vichy government in Africa.

Answers to these questions are bound to affect allied relations with Spain and with the civil population of France.

Charges that the government is resorting to secret sessions in order to prevent discussion of matters unfavorable to it—and not, as pretended, on security grounds—were made in the house of lords today by Comm. Reginald T. H. Fletcher, admiralty adviser, also known as Lord Winster.

"We are reaching the point where only purely academic subjects can be taken up in public, and all matters relating to the war must be taken up secretly," Fletcher protested. "I think this procedure has very little to do with security at all, but really is a device to save the face of the government concerning matters which are unfavorable to it."

BRITISH 30 MILES FROM TRIPOLI AS DRIVES CLOSE IN Axis Forces Beaten in Tank Battle.

LONDON, Jan. 19 (AP).—The Cairo radio tonight said the British 8th army was only 30 miles from Tripoli in its pursuit of the fleeing Nazi Africa corps.

Pincers Closing in on Port.

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 19 (AP).—The left wing of the British 8th army tonight had swept across the Tripolitanian hump to within 50 miles of Tripoli in an inland dash apparently intended to cut in ahead of Marshal Erwin Rommel's fleeing axis forces along the coast. The advance had carried more than 40 miles in a day.

The British right flank, driving along the coast, had reached a point beyond Zliten, about 80 miles west of the great port of Tripoli.

The British communique announcing the swift movement of Gen. Bernard Montgomery's army said his southern columns had driven the enemy from the Beni Ulid area in a tank battle and last night were in contact with the axis "toward Tarhuna," 40 miles southeast of Tripoli.

There was every indication that the swift momentum of this pursuit was rising and that the defense approaches to Tripoli were now in British hands.

New allied air attacks on the enemy airdrome at Castel Benito, near Tripoli, also were announced by the Cairo command. American Liberator bombers attacked Tripoli itself.

Drive Into French Lines.

ALLIED HDQ., North Africa, Jan. 19 (AP).—Enemy tanks and infantry, in actions believed related to the headlong retreat of Marshal Erwin Rommel in Tripolitania, have renewed their attacks 40 to 45 miles southwest of Tunis and have made a slight penetration of the French lines at one place, an allied communique reported today.

Allied air forces, however, continued their operations on a considerable scale. Flying Fortresses attacked the Tripoli area.

The ground action began yesterday when four axis companies attacked northwest of Bou Arada, about 22 miles south of Mejez-el-Bab, apparently to hold open the coastal road connection with Rommel.

German Tanks Repulsed.

Allied tanks, however, destroyed two enemy companies and regained all the lost ground. Two hours later German tanks renewed the attack. The axis forces were repulsed.

However, in a third attack farther south, in the area southwest of Pont-du-Fahs, German tanks penetrated French positions.

A French headquarters communique reported all enemy attacks west and southwest of Pont du Fahs had been checked.

Most of Sahara Seized.

A French headquarters spokesman announced that a French camel corps had captured Gat and Serdeles, 500 miles south of Tripoli, and had wiped out all axis occupation in the Sahara desert except Gadames, which is threatened from all sides.

Gadames is the Italian fort in Tripolitania just across the border from the Ft. Saint, anchor of the Mareth fortified line in Tunisia, behind which Rommel may attempt a stand.

5 STATES SELL 67 MILLION POUNDS MEAT FOR ALLIES

The food distribution administration announced yesterday that it had purchased about 60 million pounds of pork meat products, 1,900,000 pounds of beef, 5,111,000 pounds of lamb and mutton and more than 13 million pounds of lard in five states of the Great Lakes region during December for shipment to allied nations.

Other purchases in the region—Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Ohio—included [in pounds unless otherwise specified]: miscellaneous meat products, 4,836,000; creamery butter, 210,874; dried skim milk, 3,553,322; dried whole milk, 846,690; canned eggs, 473,970; wheat flour, 10,575 barrels; oleomargerine, 24,150,687; vanilla custard powder, 256,000; canned whole white potatoes, 202,100 cases; cornstarch, 42 million; laundry starch, 61,776; heavy white oats, 800,000; dried beans, 9,690,000, and soy bean oil, 1,140,000.

18TH DAY! PLANE FAILS TO NOTICE RICK'S 3 RAFTS

Only Faith and Cussing Out Keep Off Despair.

[This is the ninth instalment of the story—told here in full for the first time—of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker and six surviving companions and their three weeks' fight for life against the perils of the equatorial Pacific. It is told by Lt. James C. Whittaker of the army transport command, co-pilot of the Flying Fortress which was crashed into the sea Oct. 21 after running out of fuel.]

BY LT. JAMES C. WHITTAKER
U. S. Army Air Force Transport Command
As Told to CHARLES LEAVELLE.
[Copyright: 1943: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Dawn of our 18th day afloat found me in the stern of our raft, brooding in a half wakeful stupor. Our morale, I was thinking, had sunk just about as low as it could go. Nothing could depress us further. And as usual, I was wrong.

That day, the day after, and the 20th day dealt us such crushing blows that, had it not been for the fortitude built up in hours of prayer since our crash landing at sea Oct. 21, I think we all would have given up. It was my new found faith in God that sustained me. Of this I am sure.

As the dawn came up I waited for a stirring of wind that would signal the end of the doldrums in which we had been stuck more than three days.

No wind stirred; not even a breeze. The east flamed up like a fantastic forest fire, heralding another scorching day.

Swears at Sun.

I swore at the sun before it ever appeared. The sun and the glaring sea had begun to take on personality. I hated them both as I would hate a human enemy. The sun peeped over the rim and paused a second or two to leer at us. Then it bounded into the sky.

The other fellows aroused in their rafts and stretched themselves weakly. The moorning water ration was handed around; an inch in the bottom of the flare shell. The dole was growing smaller.

I didn't care much at that writing. The water tasted like hell and only made me thirstier.

How that day passed I don't know. At the prayer service I remember reminding God of the miracle of the rain on the 13th day. I prayed as never before for rescue; not just for fresh water or food, but to be picked up. Memory of the rain miracle bore me up and the end of the service found me with something like fortitude. I felt rescue was coming. So I prayed again—that I should live to see it.

The sun climbed and the heat grew almost unbearable. About noon began the daily round of delirious shouts and snatches of crazy song. Nearly all of us were holding long and serious conversations with people who were not there. Jim Blood came up from Davy Jones' locker to talk with me awhile.

Hears Son's Voice.

I could hear his voice, but he explained that in daylight he could not be seen. It was not very satisfactory. Then I heard a voice that made me jump. It was my son, Thomas, 19 years old, talking to me. When I left home he was with his naval unit stationed in San Francisco.

"What are you doing out here, Tom?" I asked. "When did you leave San Francisco?"

"I was sent to sea over two weeks ago, Dad," he said. "You see—we were sunk. And since I was out here I thought I'd drop in and see how you were getting along."

I heard the voice no more, tho I called out again and again. That incident of delirium bedeviled me from then on until I could communicate with my wife and learn that all was well. I had heard of persons recently dead appearing to near relatives or friends. And in my abject state on that 18th day adrift I would have believed anything.

After an eternity of blinding agony the heat let up and the sun neared the western rim. And then it happened; the thing that nearly wrecked us all.

Hear Engine's Roar.

We had had our evening dole of water and were sitting silent. I happened to be looking at Capt. Bill Cherry, pilot and commander of the Flying Fortress we had crash landed. Suddenly Bill straightened up. There was a sort of wild look in his eyes.

"I hear an engine!" he yelled. "I hear an engine! Hear it?"

We all looked sadly at one another and said nothing. Then suddenly, like six jacks-in-the-box the rest of us were up staring rigidly into the sky.

We ALL had heard it. A deep toned roar, muted by distance. Then Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker and Cherry saw it at the same time, silhouetted against a low cloud bank in the west and coming in our general direction.

It was a pontoon scout plane, resembling the navy Kingfisher. It occurred to us that it might be a Jap; the Japs have a plane that at a distance looks something like the Kingfisher. But we nearly went crazy—maybe I should say crazier—just the same. It meant there was an air base somewhere in the vicinity. Somewhere, not far over the rim, was an outpost of civilization.

The plane was coming fast and we began to see that its course would take it ...st us at least three miles away. You could feel the spontaneous thought: "The flares! Get the flares!"

The flares. It would have taken quite some getting to pick the four flares and the three Very pistols off the ocean floor where they had been since our raft tipped over in the squall. Realization followed the thought with sickening suddenness.

But we didn't give up. We shouted and waved—and prayed. The plane droned by about five miles off without seeing us. If some of us didn't weep it was only because there wasn't enough moisture left in us to form the tears. It was the worst blow we'd had. Silence fell, but it didn't last very long. Rickenbacker was two jumps ahead of us.

I think the cussing Rick gave the gang that evening was the masterpiece of his career. In about a minute he had every one roaring mad, then he got under their skins individually.

He finished up with a broadside at the whole bunch. It was the most wonderful handling of profane language I ever have heard. The burden of his remarks was that if a plane came once, it would come again. If there was one plane there were many. That if we had moved this close to them we would move closer. Good things are coming; we should have the courage and patience to wait for them.

Out of Doldrums.

As if to back up his words there was a puff of wind, then another. A steady, strong breeze followed and we moved. We were out of the doldrums, and in the morning it rained. There wasn't enough of it to store away, but we all slaked our thirst.

Best of all, the wind that rose with the storm continued after it had ended. We moved. We were out of the doldrums.

The rain served another end also. Lt. John J. De Angelis, our navigator, and Johnny Bartek, our youthful engineer, had been drinking salt water, as had Sergt. Alex Kaczmarczyk the day before he died. Both got enough fresh water into their systems to flush out the salt.

Shortly after dawn of the 19th day the scout plane came over again, much closer. It missed us by about three miles and was flying at 1,200 feet. Both times we nearly went out of our heads with excitement. And each time, before we could settle into black despond, Rickenbacker was right on the job, working every one into such fury that the plane soon was forgotten.

Hope Roars from the Skies

In today's instalment of his story of the adventure of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker and his companions adrift in the Pacific, Lt. James C. Whittaker tells how the noise and sight of a plane in the skies brought sudden hope to the tortured men—but the plane was too far away to see them.

ENGINEER ON RICK'S PLANE WILL BECOME MINISTER AFTER WAR

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 19 [Special].—Sergt. John Bartek, engineer of the plane that was carrying Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker on a war department mission when it was forced down in the Pacific, today revealed he plans to become a minister after the war.

In an interview here Sergt. Bartek said he had been an unbeliever when the fateful flight started in Hawaii but that the manifestation of God's mercy in answering the prayers of the men for food and water while they spent 21 days adrift had brought about his redemption.

Bartek is touring war plants in upstate New York and making informal talks to workers.

SURVEY TO SHOW WHEN U. S. WILL DRAFT FATHERS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—A nation-wide survey is being made in an effort to determine how soon it will be necessary to draft married men with children, selective service sources said today.

Officials said it is anticipated that draft boards will start taking men with children before the end of the year, but that speculation on a definite date would be guesswork.

State draft officials are being asked, it was said, to estimate how many childless men not yet drafted will be available for military service. Possible changes in demands by the army and navy for men and new rulings on occupational deferments are unpredictable factors that will affect draft plans, they explained.

When married men with children are called, officials said, those with one child probably will be taken first.

GREEN APPEALS FOR END OF FARM LABOR SHORTAGE

Gov. Dwight H. Green called last night for an end to federal mishandling of agricultural labor problems and urged immediate action to relieve the labor shortage before the nation's farm industry is threatened.

Gov. Green addressed the opening session of the 39th annual meeting of the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable association in the Drake hotel.

"My interest in the welfare of the farmer made me aware of the farm man power shortage many months ago. I know the fresh foods industry has been hit harder by lack of labor than almost any other branch of agriculture," Gov. Green said.

Friendly Planes Cause Air Alarm in Honolulu

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 19 (AP).—An air raid alarm was sounded here at 12:48 a. m. today, followed by an all clear at 1:05. Pacific headquarters said the alarm was due to the presence of "unidentified elements, later reported as friendly."

NELSON, WHO LED CHICAGO HEROES, REPORTED SAFE

Wife Alleviates Fears for Guadalcanal Officer.

Col. LeRoy Nelson, 56 year old Chicagoan who led his troops to initial victories that paved the way for the storming of Mount Austen, strategic Jap held height on Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons, is safe, his wife, Leona, said last night.

Col. Le Roy Nelson.

Mrs. Nelson is now living in Charleston, S. C., where two sons, Pierre, 20, and Kent Le Roy, 16, are students at military academies.

Story Reports Replacement.

Friends of Col. Nelson had expressed concern over his safety when a dispatch from Robert Cromie, Tribune correspondent on Guadalcanal, stated that Col. Nelson had been replaced by Col. Alexander George of Orlando, Fla., as head of the victorious Chicago troops.

Yesterday morning, however, James T. Bristol, executive secretary of the Lake Shore club, 850 Lake Shore drive, received a cablegram from Col. Nelson, dated Jan. 18 at a South Pacific port.

Then, later in the day, Mrs. Luther Adams, 907 Linden avenue, Winnetka, said a recent letter from her husband, a major on Guadalcanal, brought the news that Col. Nelson had been transferred from his command.

Mrs. Nelson confirmed the news when reached by THE TRIBUNE at Charleston last night.

Col. Nelson served in the World war in the 122d field artillery and he and Mrs. Nelson, member of a prominent Luxembourg family, were married while he was serving with the army of occupation. He joined the Illinois National Guard after the war and became colonel of an infantry regiment. In civilian life he was vice president of the Illinois Zinc company.

Army Wives Thrilled.

A group of army wives, who meet once a month at the Illinois Athletic club to exchange information about their warring husbands, had plenty to talk about last night.

They came to the meeting with copies of yesterday's TRIBUNE under their arms, folded to Cromie's stirring story of the capture of Mount Austen by Chicago troops.

"We all began telephoning each other early yesterday morning," said Mrs. Harriet Buskett, 599 Central avenue, Highland Park. "We can never thank THE TRIBUNE enough for bringing us news of our husbands."

On Killing Japs.

Lt. Laurence Buskett told Cromie he had a spot marked from which he intended to kill some Japs the next day.

"I'll bet he did too," Mrs. Buskett said.

Mrs. Mary K. Casper, 1439 East 60th place, thanked THE TRIBUNE for bringing news of her husband, Lt. Col. Andrew F. Casper, and their wounded son, Sergt. Richard Casper, 20.

"I knew my son had been wounded," Mrs. Casper said, "but I was so relieved to hear that it was not serious."

Young Casper was wounded in the leg Dec. 26 while "pushing a squad along." Another son, Edson, is an army private in an eastern camp.

A Home Celebration.

Mrs. Dorothy Ferry, wife of Lt. Col. George F. Ferry of 8543 Bennett avenue, said Cromie's story caused a celebration at her home. "The children and I had been so depressed," she said. "The last letter we had said he was going up front, and we hadn't received word since. It was wonderful news to read that he was safe.

Col. Ferry's troops captured the principal objective in the offensive.

ENGINEER DIES OF HEART ATTACK.

Clement Wensing, 68 years old, 1405 Emerald avenue, Chicago Heights, died of a heart attack yesterday as he reported for work at the Weber Costello School Supplies company, four blocks from his home. Wensing was plant engineer and had been employed by the company for 30 years.

Heroes' Wives Attend Reunion

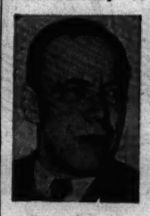
U. S. Can Produce for Allies and Herself, Says Patterson

West Point, N. Y., Jan. 19 (AP).—Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson asserted today that America's superior resources, mechanical ability, and industrial system left no doubt of "our ability to produce arms for those fighting with us and at the same time to take our full part in the fighting."



Robert Patterson.

"We cannot leave the hard work of fighting to the British, the Russians, and the Chinese," he told 409 graduates in the first "streamlined" war class at the United States Military academy.

Declaring that "a war like this one cannot be fought without an army and a navy of size adequate to the task," Patterson said:

"It would seem self-evident that the size of the armed forces that are necessary to win the war is a military problem and that the solution of it must be left to military leaders."

An army of 7,500,000 together with the other service branches would call for a total force of 10,000,000 under arms, he said.

Asserting that one year's training should be figured in the case of most combat troops and that "a strong force must be maintained in this country for purposes of surprise, for defense, and for strategic reserves," Patterson said "No one expects to ship 7,500,000 men overseas in 1943." In general, he said, divisions raised this year "will be prepared for transport overseas in 1944."

The undersecretary advised the 164 cadets who have earned their wings and will be commissioned directly into the air corps for the first time in the academy's history that "it is not enough that West Point merely fill a quota of flying officers."

The United States, he said, would "build the most powerful striking force from the air that the world has ever known." Newly designed planes already on the production lines with heavier hammering power would be more than a match for new Nazi planes, he added.

ALLIES POCKET JAPS AT 4 POINTS AFTER TAKING SANANANDA

ALLIED HDQ. IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 20 [Wednesday]—(AP).—American and Australian fighters tightened their lines around four pockets of doomed Japanese in the Sananda sector of New Guinea yesterday after taking the village and point Monday.

Japanese were pocketed on the coast on both sides of Sananda point and in two places along the swampy Sananda road which leads to the beach. Enemy casualties were described as heavy. Twenty-seven were captured. Some Japanese escaped from dugouts and were wandering at large. Eighteen Jap bombers raided the Sananda area in an attempt to aid their beleaguered ground forces, but the attempt was unsuccessful.

The first disclosure of the presence of any enemy submarine in Australian waters in several months came with the announcement that a small allied vessel had been torpedoed and sunk. There were two casualties.

Ration Heads Authorize Extra Gasoline for Jurors

Rationing authorities informed Chief Justice John A. Sbarbaro of the Criminal court yesterday that persons serving as grand or petit jurors would be allowed sufficient gasoline to transport them to and from their homes while in service. To obtain gasoline for this purpose the jurors will be given a letter of certification by the chief justice.

DOXEY, BEATEN DEMOCRAT, GETS $8,000 SENATE JOB

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19. — Another administration lame duck was provided for today when senate Democrats in caucus nominated former Sen. Wall Doxey [D., Miss.] for the $8,000 a year job as senate sergeant at arms. Nomination is tantamount to election by the senate since the Democrats hold a majority.

Wall Doxey.

Doxey will take office Feb. 1, succeeding Chesley W. Jurney, who has held the job since March 9, 1933. Jurney announced his intention to "retire," according to senators attending the caucus, but it is well known that southern Democrats were gunning for him since he tried to serve warrants on absentee senators during the filibuster on the anti-poll tax bill at the last session.

Sen. Kenneth McKellar [D., Tenn.] was particularly bitter over the order for his arrest and stopped speaking to his long time friend, Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley for issuing the order. McKellar placed Doxey's name in nomination for sergeant at arms, a soft job which even provides a government limousine and chauffeur. Jurney, former secretary to the late Sen. Royal S. Copeland of New York, will be entitled to a pension of $3,600 a year because of 46 years' service altogether with congress.

BRAKEMAN DIES ON JOB.

William Kent, 63 years old, a brakeman for the Milwaukee road for 30 years, died of heart disease yesterday on a suburban train in Deerfield shortly before it began its run to Chicago. He lived at 706 Central avenue, Deerfield.

FINDS NO. AFRICA PROSPERS UNDER RULE OF FRENCH

The three French possessions invaded by United States troops in northwest Africa have prospered thru the years under French rule, and while they present a "strange and curious country" to American troops, their natives are well informed, intelligent, and acquainted with the world, says an article in the current issue of the Field Artillery journal.

Tunisia, on the east, is a country of about 40,000 square miles, with a population of about 2,500,000, ruled by a bey, under the guidance of a French resident general, Col. Conrad H. Lanza, author of the article, reports. The white population of 200,000 is predominantly Italian.

Living Standard Raised.

"Some tribes are nomads, others farmers, and some live in cities," Col. Lanza says. "In times past almost all were nomads. There has been considerable success in civilizing this country [which is a protectorate] and in raising the standard of living."

Algeria, the article describes as an area of more than 200,000 square miles, excluding desert backlands, with a population of about 5 millions. The white population of about 1 million is predominantly French.

"France entered Algeria in 1830," Col. Lanza writes. "Her reason was that the then ruler had insulted the French consul by hitting him in the face with a fly swatter at a reception." The French invaded and have been there ever since.

Covered with Farms.

France has transformed the country, Lanza says. "The wild animals have been killed off and the wild Arabs tamed. The country is once again covered with farms [as in Roman times] and has excellent paved roads and railroads. Marvelous crops of wheat, barley, cotton, and semi-tropical fruits are raised. Flocks and herds abound.

"Commerce is profitable. Algeria has exported food, wines, wool, leather, and other products to France and has received in return manufactured articles, gasoline, etc. Trade between France and Algeria is open to French ships only, by a law similar to ours on coastal shipping."

Col. Lanza describes the strong agitation in both Tunisia and Algeria for independence about 10 years ago.

"The disturbances were stopped after the native leaders had had it explained to them that if they ousted the French it was very probable that Germans and Italians would take over their countries," he writes.

Stand with France.

"So thoroly convinced were they on this that notwithstanding the weakness of France since the armistice of 1940, the natives have made no attempt to break away from France. They have realized that small states need a protector."

Algeria is politically a part of France, but Morocco, its western neighbor, is a French protectorate. It is about Algeria's size and population.

"It will be remembered that France built the Suez canal, and she owned most of its securities," Col. Lanza writes. "By treaty France gave up her special interests in Egypt, and in return the British gave France Morocco. The French thereupon started necessary proceedings to conquer that state.

Germans Get Territory.

"In 1911 Kaiser Wilhelm sent the cruiser Panther to Morocco, meaning 'Where do I come in on this French-British deal?' France bought off Germany by ceding certain territories in West Africa. By a series of short campaigns France slowly occupied Morocco, the job having been completed only within the last five years. Morocco is ruled by a sultan—one of the few remaining despots left in this world.

"In all three possessions France has been careful not to interfere with native customs, laws and religion. The natives rule themselves."

"They [the natives] are well informed and intelligent," he says. "It is no longer possible to deceive them for long. They are true live wires."

Smuts to Ask Service Abroad for South Africans

New York, Jan. 19 [Special].—Prime Minister Jan Christiaan Smuts today announced in Cape Town that he would present a resolution Thursday, saying that in view of the progress of the war and the prospect of the early expulsion of the enemy from Africa, the South African parliament approves voluntary recruiting of South African forces for service beyond the continent of Africa.

RUSSIAN CLAIMS STIR LONDONERS TO WONDERMENT

Second Front Clamor Is Perplexing.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—News from Russia, reporting overwhelming successes in the Reds' two months offensive, including the relief of Leningrad, still perplexed observers here today. The very sources that are sending out these success reports stress the urgency of a second front. If one is set up, it would mean that the allied battle in North Africa is of secondary importance.

There is speculation as to what extent these reports can be relied upon. The impression caused by them here, however, is such that back bench members of parliament intend, according to the Daily Herald, to urge the prime minister to send a message to Moscow saying: "Grand show, Mr. Stalin."

Emphasize Russian Losses.

Morley Richards, in the Daily Express, praises the Russians for understatement in reporting their great gains in the Schluesselburg region, on the outskirts of Leningrad, saying: "Altho, following their usual custom, the soviets kept silent concerning their new offensive until their gains were consolidated," the relief of Leningrad "virtually has been admitted by the Germans in their own communiques during the last week."

Undoubtedly the Germans in Stalingrad are in great difficulty, but German communiques consistently have been emphasizing the huge Russian losses, including 6,000 tanks, since this offensive began, and a definite weakening in Russia's ability to counteract another offensive.

No Key Points Taken.

Only when one looks back to the Russian communiques of a year ago does one realize, despite recent Russian gains, the vital importance to them of recovering one of the numerous key points in the German defense lines.

Therefore, altho the Russians may be understating their victories, the fact is that they have not captured even one main key position—such as Rostov or Kharkov.

The Communist Daily Worker insists that the most urgent need at the moment is for a second front. It urges the members of parliament to demand this.

U. S. SUBMARINES ADD FIVE MORE JAP SHIPS TO TOLL OF SINKINGS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19 (AP).—Five Japanese ships, including a destroyer, were sunk by American submarines in the Pacific recently, the navy announced today, and two other craft were damaged. In addition to the destroyer, the ships sunk were a small patrol vessel, a medium sized transport, and one large and one medium sized cargo ship. A large tanker and a small cargo ship were damaged.

These attacks by American undersea raiders raised the total of Japanese ships which have been blasted by submarines to 117 sunk, 22 probably sunk and 31 damaged—a total of 170.

The last previous report by the navy on American operations against Japan's extended supply lines was issued on Jan. 2 and said seven enemy vessels had been sunk and one damaged.

THIRD DAUGHTER BORN TO DUTCH CROWN PRINCESS

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 19 (AP).—A third daughter was born tonight to Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands, and the line of succession to the throne, for which a male heir has not been born since 1851, remained unchanged. The 33 year old crown princess and her third child "are doing well," said the attending physician, Dr. John F. Puddicombe.

A son would have become automatically heir to the throne after the reigning Queen Wilhelmina and Princess Juliana.

The little princess, who weighed 7 pounds 12 ounces, is the first member of the royal house of Orange to be born outside the Netherlands territory and the first member of any European royal family to be born in North America. Her father, Prince Bernhard, had flown from Britain recently to be here for the event. Her sisters are Princess Beatrix, who will be 5 years old on Jan. 31, and Princess Irene, 3. Princess Beatrix is heiress to the throne after her mother.

Brazilian Plane Downed; Sub or 5th Column Blamed

Gain 40 Mi.; Advance Also on Rostov Front.

MOSCOW, Jan. 20 [Wednesday]—(AP).—The Red army has reached a point only 79 miles from Kharkov, big Ukraine industrial city, in a 40 mile westward sweep that has resulted in the capture of 52,000 axis prisoners in a week, it was announced in a special communique circulated last night by the soviet news agency, Tass.

149

Kamensk, 85 miles north of Rostov, strategic Nazi base at the northwestern corner of the Caucasus, also fell to the Russians, the communique said. Field reports placed the Russian vanguards within 75 miles of Rostov, vital enemy communications hub.

Meanwhile, as the siege of the Volga citadel of Stalingrad entered its 149th day, the Russians reported they seized fortified enemy positions in the city and killed 500 Germans west of the city and captured 329.

Capture 21,000 in a Day.

Valuiki and Urazovo fell to the Russians driving on Kharkov and the Red army now has hurled the Germans back to their 1941 invasion mark. Valuiki, an important rail junction for three lines, is 82 miles northeast of Kharkov. Urazovo is 79 miles east of the steel city.

Of the 52,000 prisoners taken since last Wednesday, 21,000 were reported seized yesterday. Of the total, the Russians said 27,500 were Hungarians, 22,000 Italians, and 2,500 Germans.

The Valuiki spearhead is the northern arm of the Russian drive to envelop Kharkov. The southern arm is operating in the area of Novo-Pskov, 112 miles southeast of Kharkov.

Wipe Out Encircled Force.

In between these two forces "enemy troops east of the Kamenka-Rossosh railway line are completely encircled and are being wiped out," the communique said.

In this middle Don area the Russians also were pushing westward into the Ukraine while other columns drove south toward Rostov, capture of which would trap the German armies in the Caucasus.

Kamensk is on the Donetz river about 15 miles north of Likhaya, where the Trans-Don railway from Stalingrad meets the Voronezh-Rostov line. Russian troops operating east of Kamensk captured Belaya-Kalitva yesterday, giving the Russians control of nearly all Stalingrad-Likhaya railway.

Other Drives on Rostov.

Other Russian units, Moscow dispatches said, are advancing from the area some 75 miles north of Rostov.

Four other Russian armies, however, are menacing Rostov. One is operating along the lower Don river 60 miles east of Rostov. Another is nearing Salsk, a rail and air base 100 miles southeast of Rostov. A third advanced 30 miles to take Petrovsk on the north central Caucasian railway, 190 miles southeast of Rostov, and the fourth is driving northwest toward Armavir from the Caucasian foothills.

An important advance on the central front southwest of Veliki Luki was reported. There the Russians said they took six settlements.

[The German Transocean agency said the Russians had broken thru German positions south of Lake Ladoga on the Leningrad front, but the high command said strong Russian attacks had been repelled. Both sources said the Nazis were on the defensive all along the front.]

HEAR CHILEAN SENATE VOTES TO BREAK OFF RELATIONS WITH AXIS

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 19 (AP).—The Chilean senate voted 30 to 10 tonight to break relations with the axis, political sources said, and a government announcement later said that President Juan Antonio Rios would broadcast to the country tomorrow night on the "international situation." Two abstentions were reported in the vote.

The move would leave Argentina as the lone American republic still maintaining relations with Germany, Italy, and Japan.

After weeks of wrangling over the issue, Foreign Minister Joaquin Fernandez presented the motion to the senate, then went to President Rios' residence to inform him of the vote. A public statement is expected soon.

Earlier southern Chile's strategic ports, mining centers, and other vital areas colonized by Germans were put under control of the army and navy.

SEVERSKY VICTIM OF SMEAR DRIVE, WRITER CHARGES

Attacks in Magazines and New Deal Paper Cited.

New York, Jan. 19 [Special].—An organized campaign to "discredit" Maj. Alexander P. De Seversky, exponent of all-out air power, was charged today by William Bradford Huie, author of "The Fight for Air Power," in an article in the February issue of the American Mercury.

Huie cited recent attacks on De Seversky in magazines and a New York tabloid which serves as an administration mouthpiece.

He asserted that "an assistant secretary of war called in a commercial publicity man from New York to discuss the 'Seversky problem.' This publicity man boasts that he is at work on the job of 'discrediting' the aviation expert."

Finds Hints of Deep Struggle.

The article refuted several charges hurled in this smear campaign, which it called "the symptom of a deeper struggle, under the surface, between military diehards and military progressives; between those who would unify our air strength and those who would divide it further."

He said the campaign was instigated by some "aviation people," and added that they were "too frequently those few whose planes or engines or advertising methods Seversky had dared to attack, especially in the fighter plane field."

Foe of One-Engine Policy.

Maj. De Seversky has been an outspoken critic of the policy of concentrating on one engine—the liquid cooled Allison, made by General Motors—and on the Curtiss-Wright P-40 fighter plane—which is Allison powered.

Huie said one of De Seversky's designs, which the army rejected five years ago, now is being made as the P-47 Thunderbolt, which he called the "white hope of our pursuit force."

He quoted an office of war information report, released Oct. 19 by Elmer Davis, as justification for the major's criticism of the Allison engine.

The OWI report was quoted as saying:

"When war emergency orders called on the makers of the Allison for quantity production, the engine was not yet ready for its task."

1,219 CASUALTIES LISTED BY NAVY; TOTAL NOW 21,479

21 Dead and 12 Missing from Illinois.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—The navy department today released its 20th casualty list of the war, numbering 1,219 dead, wounded and missing, as reported to their next of kin from Dec. 16 to Dec. 31, 1942.

The list numbered 418 dead, 403 wounded, and 398 missing. Most of the casualties resulted from direct action with the enemy, but included in the total are names of those who were lost in accidents at sea and in the air on duty directly connected with war time operations.

The list brought the total number of navy, marine corps, and coast guard casualties, from Pearl Harbor to last Dec. 31 to 21,497. A recapitulation of the casualties by service and classification follows:

	Dead.	Wounded.	Missing.	Total.
Navy	4,975	2,612	9,219	16,206
Marine corps	1,319	1,806	1,962	5,087
Coast guard	50	19	135	204
Total	6,344	3,837	11,316	21,497

Those from the Chicagoland area, together with their next of kin, including 21 dead, 18 wounded, and 12 missing from Illinois, are as follows:

U. S. FLYER DARES TWO RESCUES ON ICECAP; CRASHES

Missing with Third Yank in Group of Injured.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19 (AP).—A veteran coast guard aviator rescued two stranded, wounded survivors of a Flying Fortress crash from the icecap of Greenland and then presumably lost his own life in trying to save a third man. The navy department told the story today.

The aviator was Lt. John A. Pritchard Jr., 29 years old, of Morningside Drive, Burbank, Cal. He is listed as missing along with Radioman Benjamin A. Bottoms, 29, of Salem, Mass., and an unidentified army aviator.

Sails to Coast.

When Comm. Francis C. Pollard, 43, of Balboa Island, Cal., received word that radio contact had been established with the crew of the Flying Fortress, lost two weeks previously, he took his ship in close to the Greenland coast. Pritchard confidently asserted that he would be able to land on the ice, pick up survivors, and take off again. For half an hour's flying, Pritchard and Bottoms saw nothing except snow and ice. Then suddenly they sighted the wreck of the bomber and Bottoms radioed that they were ready to land.

Pritchard, however, chose a long downslope where heavy snow blanketed the ice and settled his Grumman amphibian upon it. He hiked four miles over the ice and snow and found the survivors seriously weakened by lack of food and suffering from cold. One of the three had a broken arm, two were suffering from gangrene.

Could Take Only Two.

Pritchard could take only two passengers and it was decided they would be Staff Sergt. Lloyd W. Puryere of Camelsville, Ky., and Pvt. Alexander L. Tucciarone of the Bronx New York.

The coast guard aviator succeeded in supporting and partially carrying the two injured men to the plane.

Tucciarone described the take-off down the snow covered slope—"I can only explain it by saying God was with us. We bumped from hill to hill, each time bounding a little higher, until suddenly we had the old, familiar, smooth sensation of being airborne."

Next day Pritchard and Bottoms attempted to repeat—to save the third Fortress survivor. Little is known about what happened except that they succeeded in landing and picking up the unidentified army airman. They crashed returning to the cutter. Reconnaissance flights revealed wreckage of their plane—but no sign of life.

BRITISH BOMBERS PLANT MINES IN GERMAN WATERS

LONDON, Jan. 19 (AP).—British bombers last night laid mines in enemy waters, while fighter planes attacked rail transport in northern France and other aircraft damaged three supply ships in a convoy off Holland.

Since British bombers did not raid Europe in force last night, apparently because of bad weather, informed sources were unable to explain air raid alerts sounded in Berne and Basel, Switzerland. Slight enemy aerial activity over the southeast British coast caused some damage and a few casualties.

[The German communique yesterday said Dover, England, was attacked by German bombers on Monday evening, while eight British planes were downed over the English channel region and off Norway.]

EASE REDS' LOAD, MRS. ROOSEVELT URGES CANADIANS

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 19 (AP).—Speaking at a Canadian campaign to raise $1,000,000 for aid to Russia, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight urged help for the soviets to "lighten the load they carry and to strengthen their valiant campaign."

"We can rejoice with the Russians," she said, "that at last the time has come when they can turn the tide of battle and again begin to reconquer their land." Mrs. Roosevelt made a special trip to join in the appeal for funds to send food, medicine, and clothing to Russia.

Mrs. Roosevelt said that "the people of Great Britain realize that Germany ceased sending the whole weight of her air force over Britain the day the Russian campaign began."

Germany Still Shackles British Prisoners: Eden

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the house of commons today that British prisoners in Germany still are shackled, and that he expected the British government to make a statement on the matter soon.

3 TORPEDO HITS SINK BRITISH SHIP IN ATLANTIC

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—Two medium ssized British merchant vessels were torpedoed and sunk by enemy submarines in the Atlantic off South America in mid-December, the navy reported today. Survivors have landed at Miami, Fla.

The 31 survivors of one sinking said that the undersea raider which attacked them used five torpedoes, two of which missed entirely, and 25 shells to sink their 22 year old ship. One lifeboat with 20 other men aboard has not been reported.

The losses raised to 596 the count of announced allied and neutral merchantmen sinkings in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor. In these sinkings 3,790 persons have been killed, 2,478 are missing, and 17,670 have been rescued.

CREDIT FLYER IN SINKINGS OF 3 ATLANTIC SUBS

Camp Edwards, Mass., Jan. 19 (AP).—Air attacks on three enemy submarines in the Atlantic ocean, all producing oil slicks on the surface, were described today by First Lt. Channing B. Emberson of Oakland, Cal. Two of the attacks were within 40 miles of each other on the same day. The third occurred a month later to the day.

Emberson, pilot of a patrol bomber, told of the attacks coincident with a post anouncement crediting the forays to him.

TWO ROB OFFICE AND CUSTOMER.

Two men entered the real estate office of Nick Forte and Brothers at 2068 Ogden avenue yesterday, drew guns, forced Miss Barbara Gandietz, a clerk, a male salesman and a customer into a back room, and robbed the cash box of $50. The men took a $95 watch from the customer, Joseph Iaculio, and fled.

AUREX BRINGS BACK THE HAPPINESS OF HEARING

(ADVERTISMENT)

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Care for my Car for my Country?

POLY

Phillips 66

Sonny, what you do to your car is your business, although chances are you won't be able to get another while the war is on. Now that you've smashed it, at least save the pieces for your local scrap drive.

But what your daddy does to his car is the nation's business!

The American way of life is geared to the motor car. Every automobile is a vital part of our country's transportation system. It takes the warworker to his job, transports munitions, and carries civilians in their many essential travels which form the basic pattern of U. S. business.

Every car that is laid up for whatever reason places an additional burden on the already overtaxed railroad, street car, and bus systems. That is why cars and tires must be used wisely, must be preserved to play their part in holding war production at maximum.

Your Phillips 66 Service Man is pledged to help you Care For Your Car . . . For Your Country. And though you drive less miles, don't make the mistake of assuming that your car needs less care.

Reduced driving may actually increase crankcase dilution of oil by unburned fuel . . . may increase sludge because of added condensation of moisture. Both greatly reduce the motor protection and lubricating efficiency of your oil.

Your battery, with charging time cut down, will need more frequent inspection. And spark plugs must be scientifically adjusted to prevent waste of fuel.

HOUSE ORDERS PROBE OF FCC, ASKED BY COX

Attempt at Dictatorship by J. L. Fly Charged.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—The house authorized an investigation of the federal communications commission today after Rep. E. E. Cox [D., Ga.] accused FCC Chairman James L. Fly of attempting to set up a despotic dictatorship over the nation's communications system.

James L. Fly.

Cox, who introduced the resolution calling for the inquiry, told the house that Fly's "whole outfit is now a nest of Reds," and is the "nastiest nest of rats to be found in this whole country."

"Of all the burocrats that are in town who have sought to smear the congress, this man Fly is the worst," he said.

Three Democrats in Group.

Rep. Cox was chosen by Speaker Sam Rayburn as chairman of the investigating committee. The other members are Edward J. Hart [D., N. J.], Warren J. Magnuson [D., Wash.], Richard B. Wigglesworth [R., Mass.] and Louis E. Miller [R., Mo.].

The investigation is the first ordered by the present congress with its large Republican membership.

Cox expressed the hope that the investigation would be a deterrent, as he put it, on burocrats seeking to swallow up all the legislative power which belongs to congress.

The resolution was one originally introduced in the last congress, which expired before action was taken.

Complaints Widespread.

Telling of introducing the resolution the first time, Rep. Cox said:

"The resolution was the result of representations made to me by the small broadcasters thruout the country, by newspapers having an interest in broadcasting, and by people in the government—people connected with the army and navy and many others, and because of the bad reputation of the commission ever since it was created; all those insisting that Mr. Fly, the chairman, was undertaking to set up a despotic dictatorship over all media of communication. That he has been endeavoring to do that, I attest to be a fact."

Cox told the house that he himself had consulted with the commission during negotiations of the Albany [Ga.] Herald for permission to develop a radio station. The station was licensed and a new corporation was set up to operate it. Without his knowledge, Cox said, the corporation issued him a check for $2,500 which it later replaced with stock, that he has given to a children's charity.

Agents Set on Trail.

But after the resolution for an investigation was first introduced, Cox said, Fly sent agents to investigate Cox's income tax and mail.

"He sent his gestapo like a pack of wolves on my trail," Cox asserted, "and they have trailed me since the day I offered the first resolution and they are trailing me now."

Cox said of Fly:

"When he was down here in the Tennessee valley authority, he set up a cell of the Communist party which was referred to as the best unit of the entire organization."

After criticizing the commission's organization, Cox went on:

Division Chief Assailed.

Rep. Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.], who spoke in favor of the investigation, assailed Prof. Goodwin Watson, chief of the analysis division of the foreign broadcasts section of the commission. Fish listed organizations which he said were Communist front units, of which he said Watson had been a member.

When the necessity for the investigation was questioned on the ground that the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce is already inquiring into the entire radio industry, Rep. John E. Rankin [D., Miss.] replied:

"Certain broadcasters are out to destroy the congress of the United States. I don't think we ought to wait for the other committee."

Perkins Calls for Maternity and Funeral Benefits by U. S.

New York, Jan. 19 (AP).—Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins disclosed today that proposed revisions have been drafted for the social security plan which would provide larger old age pension payments and maternity, funeral, and other benefits. She said they might be presented soon to President Roosevelt.

The secretary told 200 persons at a Town Hall meeting that the proposals would increase, progressively, the total social security premiums to an amount equal to 10 per cent of pay checks, which burden employers and employés would share equally.

Present social security premiums call for contributions of 1 per cent each by employé and employer, with contributions increased to 2 per cent each next Jan. 1.

Cites Roosevelt Message.

She said the government would not become a third contributor until after the expanded program had been in operation 10 years. She said also that the proposals would provide payment for all interruptions of employment, regardless of cause.

The labor secretary said "The need for this extension and development of our system was emphasized by President Roosevelt in his annual message to the congress of Jan. 7 when he said: 'When you talk with our young men and young women, you will find out that with the opportunity for employment they want assurance against the evils of all major economic hazards — assurance that will extend from the cradle to the grave. . . . And this great government can and must provide this assurance'."

She said farm workers, domestics, and persons employed in firms of fewer than eight employés would be covered.

Would Call on Government.

"For the first 10 years of such a system there would be no necessity for the government to contribute out of general revenues since the receipts would exceed the disbursements," she asserted.

She said that when the cost began to exceed 10 per cent "because of the increased old age retirement benefit rights being built up," the government "could well pay the excess until eventually there would be equal tripartite distribution of the cost."

The secretary added that "the sense of security which returning soldiers and sailors will have because their families are protected, as well as themselves, if such a system is put into its beginning operations now, will do much to stabilize our political and social development in the future."

IT'S LONG HAND OF OPA VEXING STATE TYPISTS

Senate Clerks Can't Rent Typewriters.

BY JOHNSON KANADY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 19.—Clerks and stenographers of the Illinois senate may have to polish up their penmanship as a result of office of price administration and war production board limitations on typewriter rentals.

Lt. Gov. Cross.

Lt. Gov. Hugh W. Cross, president of the senate, made public today a file of correspondence covering two months' effort to rent the 25 or 30 typewriters needed for senate clerical and committee work, all without avail.

Now, with the session under way and the government's denial of the request for typewriters coupled with a demand that state offices give up part of their already heavily loaded equipment, Cross has washed his hands of the whole affair.

"The stenographers will have to borrow typewriters where and as they can," he said.

Record of Correspondence.

The correspondence file in brief runs:

Nov. 9—Application is made to the state office of price administration for permission to rent typewriters. Reasons are given and the needs are outlined.

Nov. 10—The OPA denies the request, saying that the state government cannot rent typewriters which have been manufactured since 1935. Section 1938.103 [b] [2] is cited.

Nov. 28—The OPA suggests that perhaps Joseph Overlock, regional head of the WPB, can help in the matter.

Nov. 30—Edward H. Alexander, secretary of the senate, makes formal application for the rental of the machines to WPB—in quadruplet.

Asks for State Typewriters.

Dec. 1—Ray Priest of the war production board asks Cross to aid him in seeing the proper officials to arrange to give up to federal agencies 25 per cent of the typewriters owned by the state. The letter adds that "by a curious coincidence" the matter of the senate renting typewriters has just come up and it is believed a plan will be worked out.

Dec. 24—Cross receives a wire from Maury Maverick, head of the governmental division of the WPB in Washington, announcing the refusal of the senate's application.

Dec. 28—Illinois officials decide they will think twice or maybe more times before they let federal bureaus take any state-owned typewriters.

Jan. 7—The WPB in Washington writes the state senate of Illinois to say that the formal application has been considered and has been formally denied.

Court Upholds 14 Year Abortion Death Sentence

The Illinois Supreme court yesterday affirmed the Criminal court conviction of Dr. Nathaniel Schaffner, 53 years old, a Chicago physician, of the abortion murder of Mrs. Emma Laisure, 27. He was sentenced to 14 years in prison. The woman died last July 7 in Dr. Schaffner's office at 4009 Lincoln avenue.

A NEW SPIRIT IN CONGRESS.

This congress is beginning to give the voters what they wanted when they turned against the New Deal in the election of Nov. 3.

The senate committee on insular affairs has voted 9 to 3 in favor of Sen. Vandenberg's bill to limit the term of office of the governor of Puerto Rico to four years. If the bill is enacted the term of the present governor, Rexford Tugwell of the brain trust, would expire 60 days after the law goes on the books. He could be reappointed, but if he were the question of his fitness would then come before the senate in connection with the ratification of the nomination and the whole record of his governorship could then be examined. The Puerto Ricans would at last have their day in court to prove their charge that in his pursuit of doctrinaire ends Mr. Tugwell has deprived them of their rights as citizens and has done them great economic injury.

The matter is of scarcely less moment to us on the continent than to the islanders. As long as Tugwell remains in high office, the will of the people of this country to be rid of the New Deal burocracy, its tyrannies and its sadism, is being flouted. Tugwell is using Puerto Rico as a testing ground for governmental schemes intended for eventual use at home. His continuance in office is a standing threat to the American people, a threat which they sought to remove at the last election.

Another sign of the new spirit in congress was the introduction of a resolution by Rep. W. Sterling Cole of New York calling for a house committee to investigate rationing and related problems. Mr. Cole takes the sensible view that no commodity should be rationed merely because some burocrat would like to impose hardships. Mr. Cole finds no evidence to justify the rationing of sugar, for example. He believes that the committee he proposes would provide a forum where the burocrats would be required to justify their rationing plans, where business men could give testimony on the facts of demand and supply and criticize the methods of distribution laid down by the burocrats, and where the public could be heard. He believes that such a forum would have prevented much or all of the waste and confusion incident to gasoline and oil rationing.

Rep. Cole's proposal is a sound one and should be adopted. The people of this country are not unwilling to make necessary sacrifices, as he said, but they are persuaded that this administration is going far beyond the necessities with a view to habituating the people to tyranny.

Another proposal of great significance comes from the Republican members of the appropriations committees of both houses. They have introduced a concurrent resolution calling for the appointment of a joint congressional committee on budgetary control. This committee would have the power to examine departmental requests for money and to inquire into the manner in which appropriations had been spent. The committee would have its own expert staff to assist it and would have the power to subpena witnesses.

Congress, under the Constitution, has the responsibility of levying taxes and making appropriations, but in recent years it has permitted the executive departments to dominate it in these as in so many other matters. The result has been a ten year orgy of spending, climaxed by Mr. Roosevelt's recent request for 109 billion dollars for the next fiscal year. The sum is huge, almost beyond any one's capacity to comprehend. There is the greatest need for a committee in congress to examine the estimates, item by item, to discover how much of this money is actually needed to fight the war. A standing committee, we have no doubt, can save the people billions of dollars of useless outlay and by so doing can go far to avert financial catastrophe.

Each of these proposals is important in itself. Together they show that a new spirit is moving in congress. As was said at the time, the decision of Nov. 3 was a turning point in our history. It marked the end of the trend toward dictatorship, the beginning of the return to constitutionalism.

HORSE MEAT CAN BE TENDER.

Horse meat suffers from an unjustified prejudice in the public mind because the butchers usually wait too long to kill the horse. You are not going to get filet mignon from a skate that dallied 15 years in the shafts of a junk wagon before proceeding to the slaughter house, but a Kentucky Derby prospect should provide some tender eating.

Then what are we waiting for? In a nation suffering meat shortages, why should thousands of acres of the finest pasture land in the world, in Kentucky and other states, be wasted on horses instead of being made useful in fattening steers and nourishing dairy cattle? In a nation at war, why should thousands of worthless thorobreds be given stable room and feed when their only contribution is to the gambling vermin who support the metropolitan political machines of the New Deal?

Two decades ago, when horse racing was creeping back from the outlawry imposed on it by its own previous misdeeds, the great claim made for it was that it helped improve the breed of cavalry remounts. Two years ago a general in some army maneuvers in Texas, burdened with some so-called portee cavalry, in which the horses and men were both hauled up to the front in trucks, solved his tactical troubles by putting the men in the trucks, leaving the horses behind, and outflanking the enemy. Since then no one has been much interested in remounts, except such as Mr. Jeffers hopes to provide.

There is no necessity for making the war an excuse for a moralistic crusade against horse racing. The simple fact is that the expensive race track layouts and the equally expensive and useless breeding farms are wasting labor, fodder, and production facilities in a nation pressed for food. If the horse fanciers want to save a score or so of the best stallions and brood mares so that the strain will not be lost, no one will object. But meanwhile, please pass the Belmont steaks.

IT HURTS—BUT NOT US.

On this page is reproduced an Editorial of the Day taken from the Globe-Post of Le Mars, Ia. R. F. Starzl, the editor of that newspaper, knows his colleagues in Iowa journalism very well. He knows the motives that prompted Emanuel P. Adler's Mason City Globe-Gazette to print an editorial making a vicious attack upon THE TRIBUNE, and the motives of the Des Moines Register in reprinting it.

We need add little to what Mr. Starzl has said. THE TRIBUNE does not know how Mr. Adler gets his knowledge of what would be considered suitable for a statue on Unter den Linden. It does know that Mr. Adler compromises his editorial integrity by operating two newspapers in some cities so that he can represent both sides of any question. If he can't get readers with one editorial policy, he apparently hopes to catch them with the other. That a man of this sort is commercially minded goes without saying. When THE TRIBUNE starts taking readers away from him, he is bit in the most tender place.

Mr. Gardner Cowles' newspaper in Des Moines has gone internationalist in a big way since its editor went Wall street. Its conviction is that anybody who speaks up for American interests is necessarily parochial. The Cowles papers faithfully reflect the outlook of Mr. Wendell Willkie, who, evidently despairing of hoodwinking the American electorate again, has been devoting his efforts lately to drumming up votes among the British, Russians, and Chinese. The last time he went globetrotting, Mr. Gardner Cowles Jr. went along to hold his hand. It is presumed that this mission was part of Mr. Cowles' duties as domestic director of the office of war information, the agency used to further the administration conspiracy to keep the newspapers and public ignorant of what is happening.

The Adler and Cowles papers wouldn't be compelled to raise such a plaintive cry at losing their readers if they had not first sold them out. And they would not have sold out their readers if they had not first sold out the interests of their country. THE TRIBUNE is getting readers in Iowa principally because Iowans have been betrayed by their own press and are aware of it.

Naturally it hurts a lot of publishers when they can't sell their particular line of herb medicine. They go to elaborate lengths to express their spite. A nice example of that is provided by the Louisville Courier-Journal, very internationalist and very war minded indeed. Its editor, Mr. Herbert Agar, one of the most clamorous of the shouters in pre-war days, is now a lieutenant commander of public relations in the navy. Its publisher, Mr. Barry Bingham, is hiding out in the navy's press relations office in London.

On Dec. 31 the Courier-Journal wired for permission to reprint a Tribune cartoon of the preceding day. The permission was granted, and the cartoon was reproduced in conjunction with an editorial which attacked this newspaper. This is the first betrayal of a courtesy extended to another publisher in our recollection. And, by pure coincidence, no doubt, the Courier-Journal editorial and the cartoon slyly borrowed from THE TRIBUNE subsequently were considered appropriate to be reproduced in a Chicago administration mouthpiece which is the principal tenant in Secretary of the Navy Knox's building.

As we say, when envious editors contemplate THE TRIBUNE, it hurts. But it doesn't hurt us.

Editorial of the Day

[Le Mars (Ia.) Globe-Post.]

Recently the Des Moines Register—one of a group of publications which often trim their sails so as to be with the current political winner, republished with considerable prominence an editorial from the Mason City Globe-Gazette attacking THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for its criticism of burocratic incompetence, and especially the rationing program, and the editorial ends on this delirious note:

"If there isn't in Unter Den Linden a statue of THE TRIBUNE'S publisher in heroic dimensions, it must be concluded that Herrs Hitler and Goebbels—along with their other and greater shortcomings—are notably lacking in gratitude."

In other words, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S publisher is a nasty Nazi because he won't be fatuously complacent about things which he sees are hindering us from efficiently prosecuting the war.

Now this sort of bickering might be attributed merely to understandable jealousy because THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is cutting into the circulation of the Iowa dailies, and especially those which aspire to more than local circulation. At any rate, we see more CHICAGO TRIBUNES around here than we ever saw before, and in every case its subscribers seem almost fanatically devoted to that paper and willing to follow its leadership.

This was especially demonstrated during the late Republican senatorial primary, when much touted Mark Thornburg, backed by the Des Moines Register and Wendell Willkie, took a thoro beating from George A. Wilson, of whom just about the most damning thing the foreign minded Des Moines clique could say was that THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE wanted him nominated. Well, THE TRIBUNE wanted him elected, too, and look how he ran against Clyde Herring!

So it may be that some Iowa dailies are piqued because of the growth of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S circulation. And again, their inability to see what THE TRIBUNE is doing for them may be a sign of journalistic decadence.

Well, we used to cuss THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, too, back in 1932 and for a year or so after that, because THE TRIBUNE was against the Nude Eel even then, when we still thought it was all right.

But now we realize that THE TRIBUNE is one of the few remaining exponents of true American journalism, and it is waging a fight for all that is good and true and genuine in our American life.

THE TRIBUNE is fighting for the freedom of the press and the freedom of speech. It is fighting for the freedom of the little fellow to earn a living, the freedom of youth to work and to plan, the freedom of age to keep and to enjoy the fruits of past labor.

Fortunate is America that there are still a few papers left like THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, big enough, and strong enough, and bold enough to defy the tyrants and the would-be tyrants, the demogogs, the wastrels of honest men's earnings, the false prophets of national socialism and communism, by whatever sweet scented names they may call themselves.

If America remains free, the credit will belong to a few courageous men such as the publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, willing to risk his wealth and if need be, his life, in the struggle to preserve our country from the borers from within.

If this battle is lost, then the weak sister publishers of the fat, soft, characterless lickspittle press will lose their wealth, too. Already they have lost their independence, and such liberty as they have left is an obvious burden to them. Piteously they look to Washington for relief from freedom and the responsibility that goes with it.

They say the romantic Russian place name, Velliki Luki, means "field of onions." Somewhere, we feel, a nuance has been lost in the translation.—Detroit News.

SAILOR MYTHOLOGY.

The appearance of Davy Jones in the saga of the Rickenbacker castaways, as told by a survivor to a TRIBUNE writer, suggests that it is time for a book on sailor mythology and marine folklore. References to the myths of the forecastle are common in literature, but we know of no complete discussion in print. It would be a marketable work in these stormy times, when so many landsmen are entering sea service and so many mariners are finding their last haven in Davy Jones' locker.

Davy Jones is an old character in Anglo-Saxon nautical lore. We doubt if his true age has ever been ascertained, but his literary existence can be traced back to 1715, when Tobias Smollett wrote in "The Adventures of Peregrine Pickle":

"This same Davy Jones, according to the mythology of sailors, is the fiend who presides over all the evil spirits of the deep, and is seen in various shapes . . . warning the devoted wretch of death and woe."

A questionable explanation of Davy Jones relates his last name to Jonah of the familiar Old Testament story, and his first to Duffy, a malign spirit of the West Indian Negroes. . . . Davy Jones' partner in the Rickenbacker saga, Jim Blood, is new to this column, but we remember a pirate called Capt. Blood.

Fiddler's Green is the sailor's alternative to Davy Jones' Locker. It is a happy place in a happy land, far, far away, where the music for sailorman dancing never stops, where there are pretty wenches to perch on the knee, an unending flow of grog, and unlimited tobacco.

* * *

The sea's most famous legend, so far as literature is concerned, is that of the Flying Dutchman, the phantom ship with a ghostly crew that is doomed never to reach her home port. Wagner's opera on the theme is familiar. In 1915 David Warfield appeared in a play based on this legend called "Van Der Decken."

* * *

The Man in the Top is a rarity, we believe. We first met him in F. Marion Crawford's short story, "The Screaming Skull":

"I've sailed in a haunted ship. There was a Man in the Top, and two-thirds of the crew died of the West Coast fever inside of ten days after we anchored."

TO A FATHER AND MOTHER.

"Son Robert . . . killed in action"—there in print
See his keen face, remark the candid glint
Of courage in young eyes fearless of fate,
And for a time stand silent at your side
Sharing unseen your grief. . . . O, not in vain,
And not too late, may we, your million friends
(For who is stranger to his fellows now?),
When time has healed a little with love and pride
The bitterest portion of your present pain,
Still at your side speak of the splendid ends
For which he yielded all that youth can vow—
And in America's name lay at your feet

Bring Back the Buffalo Robe!

The "base-burner" has been eulogized [Jan. 13] and fond memories of childhood recall the bliss of curling the toes around the shiny fenders and feeling the heat "take hold."

Grinding the coffee in the square mill, between the knees, received honorable mention [Jan. 15]. But the preceding stage deserves attention. In the 1880s coffee beans came green, and he who has not enjoyed the aroma of roasting them in the oven of a wood-burning range has missed something.

The pancake of that Victorian era was of pure buckwheat flour. The batter "riz" over night on the back of the range, and on cold winter mornings it contributed to the finest breakfast the world has known. Golden brown griddle cakes with unlimited butter and 100 per cent Vermont maple sirup, and sliced, fried, real smoked ham started the day off right.

But a real tribute of gratitude is due another institution of that period. Its virtues are forgotten or never known, and are a part of the past. No poet has sung its praises, and prose has neglected it. For a generation it was the dependable standby and last word in comfort and safety for the traveler in cold weather. One bows in homage when mentioning its name: the buffalo robe.

Originally it was the protection of a gallant animal that could stand for days and nights facing a western blizzard, and survive.

In the period of board fences and Osage orange hedges, the roads were blocked with snow all winter, and sleigh travel was over the prairies and fields. On long trips in a cutter a small boy would get desperately cold, and then down under the good old brown robe. O, joy! O, bliss! O, wrap-ture!

All hail to thee, O, buffalo robe!

THE COMPLIANT CHEETAH.

(A Brookfield Ballad.)

A cat that acts much like a dog,
The cheetah makes us gape agog!
He's wild and fierce while young and free,
But taken in captivity,
They keep him in the heart of town
And break his sales resistance down
By women's chatter, nights and days,
Till he learns meek and docile ways,
And roams unchained, completely tame,
To help the natives hunt for game.
The moral I perforce forego—
There's none a bachelor could know.

WILL IT WORK? NOT WITH ME.

FROM time to time one of our readers asks about the theories of Freud. Has his plan of treatment been adopted widely? What can be said about his doctrines?

A recent query of this sort calls to mind past efforts on the part of disciples of this Vienna physician to convert me to his beliefs. It seemed to me then, and I haven't changed my opinion, that the whole matter was an attempt by a sincere student to explain some of the partial, even total psychic weaknesses which he encountered among the inbred, subjugated unfortunates who visited his clinic.

According to Freud, the sleeper finds satisfaction in the building of a dream and all that the actor needs to do is to exercise censorship. If the episode becomes too horrifying, the victim wakens because he hasn't been able to hold the reins on the unconscious tightly enough. In this way, instinct—remarks the devotee of psychoanalysis — pressing upon the subconscious, forms these dreams. Dean Swift must have fractured his supervision terribly when he conjured up the adventures of Lemuel Gulliver.

I once took occasion to record a series of nightmares, which I submitted to a psychoanalytical friend. According to his interpretations, I should have been hanged, drawn, and quartered. I certainly would have been, had he presented his findings to the county sheriff. The strange part of it all was that I wasn't aware that anything had been annoying my inner self. A great struggle was going on within, so he stated, and he thought—as a matter of safety to society—I should be placed in solitary confinement.

With ashen face and trembling lips, I inquired, "What can I do to be saved?" "You must practice sublimation," he replied. "You must change your objective, modify your id—in fact you must inhibit your ego." "But why," I pleaded. His answer came quickly, "You must obliterate infantile interests from your thinking. Of course, this is an automatic process. Don't set out to do it deliberately, but do it you must."

So far as I was concerned, I wasn't dissatisfied with anything. True enough, my desire for accomplishment was far greater than my abilities. Nevertheless, I tried to control my id and retreat from the conflict. When a colleague found me completely uncommunicative, he remarked, "What's the matter with you today?" I replied, "I am repressing." I practiced subordination until I was weak.

Nevertheless, one night during fitful slumber, I dreamed that I was chasing my instructor over the rooftops of a medieval city armed with a three-tined spear. With the utmost daring I leaped from gable to gutter. He finally escaped by crashing thru a skylight. I awoke to find that a water glass on my bedside table had tumbled to the floor.

When I told my teacher all about it, he stated, "What did I tell you? You are a rebellious pupil. You are a doubter, you do not believe. You were trying a conversion and you have actually captured hysterical anxiety. Unless you can achieve transformation, nothing can be done for you."

I've been hopeless ever since.

STRAW IN THE WIND.

Aurora, Mo., Jan. 16.—Your Wednesday paper carried a news story telling of the victory of Marion Bennett, Republican, over Sam Ware, Democrat, in the special congressional election Tuesday in the 6th Missouri district. This particular election, in my opinion, perhaps more forcibly than anything which has happened recently, shows the trend of the voter's mind. Here's the story.

Phil Bennett, Republican, was reelected last November over Sam Ware, Democrat, by a majority of about 7,000 votes. He passed away in December, thus making a special election necessary. The Republican leaders nominated his son, Marion, who has been his father's secretary for a number of years. The Democrats nominated Sam Ware again.

There appeared in the public press immediately after the African victory, numerous comments by ranking Democrats to the effect that if the African victory had occurred before the November election, a great many more Democrats would have been elected, for then the people would have seen evidence of "master mind" planning by the New Dealers. This election was therefore most important, as it would give the voters an opportunity to express their confidence, if they had any, in the New Deal by electing a Democrat for this particular office.

The results proved otherwise, for Marion Bennett won by over a 14,000 majority, which in reality is three times the majority received by his father, due to the lighter vote. But more significant, however, is this fact—that three counties which have always voted Democratic went Republican in this election. That ought to show those New Dealers which way the wind is blowing. They are on the way out—and fast. L. A. NIELSEN.

PROPOSES RAISING WHALES.

Ingleside, Ill., Jan. 12.—I'm wondering who would help dig a fish pond as suggested by the government, for every farm. This is a get rich quick scheme for sure. How many fish would we have to sell to get rich? Perhaps a whale would bring the most money, if we could ever get it into the hole. Don't all answer at once.

THREE-DAY OLD CAPITALIST.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—A few days ago THE TRIBUNE carried a story of a two month old baby as being the youngest war bond holder on record. Our young son, Kent Howard, born Dec. 16, had two $25 bonds issued in his name on Dec. 19 and received an additional $5 in war stamps on Dec. 20. How's that for a 3 day old?

BEACH LIGHTED IN WINTER.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—I haven't any fault to find with the service men's summer center beach—that wasn't used all summer—but now it's winter and the city continues to keep it brightly lighted with big flood lights. That seems a bit foolish, but so does maintaining a beach that's never used. H. PHILLIPS.

TRUE STORY.

Oak Park, Ill., Jan. 13.—A farmer went to his ration board for a new manure spreader. The board asked him what he was going to do with it. He said: "What the h——, I am going to use it for the family to go to church." He got the manure spreader. [A true story.]

PAYING FOR THE MILLENNIUM.

New Castle, Ind., Jan. 15.—It seems to me that the amateur Jules Vernes who are popping off in the press and over the radio every hour on the hour about the post-war millennium should be required to put up or shut up. As I get it, the moment the armistice is signed we will swing into the marvelous. Every little fellow will have an airplane in his back yard, great passenger ships and freighters will plow the air at incredible speeds, science will grow hair on billiard balls, stockings for milady will be made from the mist that hovers over the valleys at sunrise, bankrupt cities that can't raise enough money to build a comfort station or clean their dirty streets and alleys will be all sweetness and light, the farmer idling in bed will press a button and automatic machines will plow the south 40, and all youse guys will eat strawberries and cream and like it. But what will we use for money? And how will it be done? Hah, now somebody is asking questions. I predict [this is an exclusive feature] that the smart buddy will be the man who owns a hoss farm.

HENRY HAMMER.

LIFE IN THE ALEUTIANS.

Forest Park, Ill., Jan. 13.—Our son is somewhere in the Aleutian Islands, where they cannot buy candy bars, smokes, or stationery. The last place they moved from the boys walked four miles for candy bars. One of the soldiers got a TRIBUNE over a month old and they took turns reading it. They are taking baths in oil drums and ate canned chili for Thanksgiving dinner.

These boys are defending our country and should be allowed to get air mail and packages. Here in the United States the soldiers have canteens where they can purchase what they need. Over there, money orders they got for gifts could not be used. MOM AND DAD.

GOLF BAG SAM'S ACQUITTAL.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—I see by the morning TRIBUNE that they have dismissed the last remaining charge against Golf Bag Sam Hunt, the gunman. I feel justified in saying, "I told you so," because I knew from the beginning the "trials" were only a farce and a waste of time, talent, and money for state and city.

Let's cut the comedy and cut down on spending money foolishly. Some people can murder in Cook county and some can't. MRS. M. E. BROWNE.

PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE.

Tomah, Wis., Jan. 16.—Paving Block Flynn's appointment as the personal representative of F. D. R. to Australia is all right, but as the representative of the people of the United States it scores zero.

J. T. NICOL.

WOULD DRAFT STRIKERS.

Vienna, Ill., Jan. 14.—Why not draft all able bodied anthracite strikers, send them overseas at once for training, as far away from home and loved ones as possible, as is the case with our sons [I do not know where my son is], and send those who are physically unfit to a concentration camp. I will volunteer for overseas service in the medical corps, go along with them, and donate half my salary to buy rice for those in the concentration camp.

How long do we American citizens have to put up with this pussyfooting with labor unions by our government, while our sons die on the battle fields?

L. L. JACKSON.

NOT HENRY THE MILKMAN.

Sheepshead Bay, N. Y., Jan. 14.—In order to avoid possible confusion among my friends, I wish to make it clear that the Henry Wallace mentioned editorially on Jan. 2—"The Dreadful Peace of Henry Wallace"—is not the Henry Wallace of Prospect, Ky., now in training for the merchant marine. I might add further that I am not a relation of the speaker mentioned, nor do I know him.

Incidentally, I think the editorial was excellent, but you can see how I might suffer unless it were made plain that you weren't talking about me.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

CORRECTED INCOME TAX ANSWERS.

Question: Is the Illinois sales tax deductible from federal income tax?

Answer: Yes. It is deductible by the retail purchaser if the amount was separately stated and paid by the purchaser at the time of the sale. This change is made by Sec. 122 of the 1942 revenue act.

Question: Do domestic workers, such as house servants, have to pay the 5 per cent victory tax?

Answer: Yes. They are subject to the tax [payable next year] altho not subject to the collection at the source [operative now]. In answering on Jan. 16 that they were exempt, we had in mind only the current pay roll deductions. Sec. 465 exempts such workers from the collection at the source provisions, but Sec. 450 says that the tax is imposed upon the "net income of every individual" [except certain aliens].

F.D.R. ULTIMATUM TO MINERS: GO BACK IN 48 HOURS

Strikers Told U. S. Will Take 'Necessary Steps.'

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19 (AP).—"As commander in chief of the armed forces," President Roosevelt served notice on striking anthracite miners today that they must return to work within 48 hours or he would take the "necessary steps" to protect the nation against "serious injury to the war effort."

The chief executive's warning, possibly implying that troops would be dispatched to the mines, was telegraphed to local and national officers of the United Mine Workers. The war labor board had advised him that the strikers had not complied with two requests from it to return to work.

12,000 Still Out.

Even as the President intervened in the three week dispute there were reports of a back to work movement in the hard coal fields of Pennsylvania. Approximately 6,000 strikers returned to their jobs this morning, leaving approximately 12,000 still out.

Workers at five collieries voted to continue their walkout, three of them balloting hours after the White House ultimatum. Local unions representing 1,200 workers at the Woodward colliery, 1,500 at Huber, and 750 at Nottingham, all of Glen Alden Coal company, voted tonight to remain away from work. Earlier locals representing 970 workers at the company's Buttonwood operation and 1,500 at the No. 7 mine of Susquehanna Collieries company had made the same decision.

John L. Lewis, president of the UMW, had no formal comment on Mr. Roosevelt's action. Officials of the UMW, however, were described as confident that the President would not have to take any steps.

Backbone Considered Broken.

They were said to believe that the backbone of the strike already had been broken and that the mines would be back in full operation well within the 48 hour period of grace allowed by Mr. Roosevelt.

The walkout began as a revolt against Lewis' leadership, with the strikers protesting a 50 cent increase from $1 to $1.50 a month in the union dues, voted by the UMW convention last fall. They also demanded a $2 a day boost in wages because of higher living costs. Mine spokesmen said current wages averaged about $8.50 a day.

From the outset the UMW branded the strike an outlaw one and Lewis repeatedly demanded that the strikers return to their jobs. He promised he would get them a "wholesome increase" in wages when their existing contract expires next April 30.

Military Rule Suggested.

There was no hint from the White House as to what steps the President had in mind to take if his telegram was disregarded. It was widely presumed, however, that he would have the military take over the mines as he had it take over six plants in earlier cases where the WLB was unable to end strikes.

In two cases—the North American Aviation company in California, in 1941, and the General Cable company in New Jersey, last year—troops were used.

There also has been some unofficial suggestion that recalcitrant strikers might find themselves classified 1-A in the draft.

The war labor board made no recommendations in its report to Mr. Roosevelt, merely suggesting that he "proceed with such action as you deem proper." Otherwise, its report was a review of the strike and of the unsuccessful efforts to terminate it.

One union official, who asked that his name not be used, declared that "the men won't work under the army and they won't work under John L. Lewis."

"They can't mine coal with bayonets," one miner declared, obviously referring to the possibility that troops might be used to enforce the President's demand.

Fighting Family.

Patrick J. Mullen, 1103 Webster avenue is certain there are no war slackers in his family. For proof he offers this record of his sons:

Pvt. Michael Mullen, 31 years old, is in the air force and stationed at Strather field, Kas. His wife, Doris, lives at 830 North Hamlin avenue.

2d Lt. Richard J. Mullen, 25, received his commission last Saturday at Fort Knox, Ky., and will report to a California station after a 10-day leave in Chicago.

Seaman 1st Cl. Terrence R. Mullen, 17, is stationed at the Portsmouth, N. H., naval base.

CUT MILK USED FOR ICE CREAM BY 35 PER CENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—Use of milk in the production of ice cream, milk mixes and malted milk products was ordered slashed 35 per cent today by Food Administrator Claude R. Wickard. The reduction was ordered to make more milk available for use in the production of butter and dried skim milk.

Food administration officials said that ice cream production, which reached an all-time peak of 435 million gallons last year, probably will not be cut the full 35 per cent. The ice cream manufacturers are able to increase their output by whipping larger quantities of air into the ice cream mix. Food and drug act limitations and state regulations on the amount of air that can be whipped into ice cream will protect the consumer against buying "mostly air" officials said.

REFUSE TO O. K. MARCANTONIO IN JUDICIARY POST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—An administration attempt to give a seat on the house judiciary committee to Rep. Vito Marcantonio, American Labor party member from New York, who was elected with Communist party support, was defeated today when house Democrats refused overwhelmingly to approve him for the post. His name was ordered sent back to the committee on committees "for further consideration."

Rep. Vito Marcantonio.

The refusal to seat him, an action almost without precedent in congressional history, was regarded as an outstanding victory for the conservative bloc which is seeking to wrest control of the party's membership in the house from the New Deal and its left wing affiliates.

Listed as Communist.

Marcantonio is the only member of his party in congress. He has been listed by the Dies committee on un-American activities as a member of more than 100 Communist front organizations. Records show that he voted against all preparedness and armament legislation prior to the German invasion of Russia. Since the Nazi legions marched into soviet territory, however, he has been an ardent supporter of all war bills.

Marcantonio's selection for the judiciary committee is understood to have been dictated by the administration following demands from the American Labor party for recognition of services rendered the New Deal in New York elections. The party is credited with having provided the votes for reelection of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman in 1938, when New Dealers feared a victory for Thomas E. Dewey and loss of the state in the 1940 Presidential election.

Fight in Caucus.

The fight over the appointment took place in a lengthy Democratic caucus in the house chamber this afternoon. Viewed from the outside, it was a scene of wild confusion with scores of members on their feet at one time.

The fireworks started when Rep. Lyle H. Boren [D., Okla.] moved to strike Marcantonio's name from the list. In the next two hours, members from all sections took the floor assailing Marcantonio's record and warning that an assignment to an important committee would constitute an indorsement of his record by the Democratic party.

Administration leaders, who went into the meeting expressing confidence that they would be able to vote Marcantonio into his designated seat, finally agreed to send his name back for another assignment.

TRIBUNE MAN SELECTED FOR SERVICE PAPER

W. J. [Jack] Foster, former Tribune reporter, will leave today for London to become a war correspondent for The Stars and Stripes, service men's daily newspaper. Foster, who enlisted in the navy a year ago, has been assigned since then to the naval public relations office here.

Selected with Foster as a Stars and Stripes war correspondent was Gene Bradnick of Indianapolis, former editor of an Indiana daily newspaper, who has been on the staff of the Great Lakes Bulletin, publication of Great Lakes Naval Training station. Foster is a yeoman second class and Bradnick a yeoman first class.

Band Instruments Freeze as 2,000 Soldiers Parade

Despite a temperature of 2 degrees below zero at 4:55 p. m. yesterday 2,000 soldiers of the army air force technical training command's Chicago schools in the former Stevens and Congress hotels took part in the formal retreat parade on Hutchins field, Grant park. This has been the daily practice since Brig. Gen. A. L. Sneed took over command of the schools. Previously, formal retreat was omitted when the weather was extreme. Only the drums and a few bugles could be used for the retreat music yesterday. Other instruments in the band froze.

Melita M. Skillen, 922 West Gordon Terrace, Chicago, teaches dramatics at a city high school. She is also chairman of the Chicago Council of the American Theatre Wing, and so in charge of this organization's war program. For this portrait by Dora, Miss Skillen wears a navy wool dress from our Misses' Dress Shop. This is the fourth in a series of eleven portraits of Chicago women in the war, drawn for us by Dora.

SO PROUDLY WE HAIL...

the Chicago School Teacher

Daily you are writing a proud chapter into the living history of this war. It is a civilian chapter—yours the torch of truth and idealism in Chicago as truly as if you lived in Nazi-occupied Norway. Yours, too, the task of being ready—with first aid training, constant drilling—to protect the youth in your charge against physical danger. Yours also, the routine of conducting the Selective Service registration, of issuing ration cards. These not enough, you take on extra wartime jobs, such as Melita Skillen's.

As chairman of the Chicago Council of the American Theatre Wing, Miss Skillen, a high school dramatics teacher, is organizing all of the little theatre groups of the city into a Stage Door Canteen. Not to operate as units that will themselves entertain soldiers, but as financial backers—angels in the wings—for professional players who will be sent touring to army camps remote from Chicago.

It's a tremendous job, but no job seems to be too big for you to take on, if it marks the way to Victory. Marshall Field & Company salutes you, knowing that so long as there are teachers in the true sense of the word there is Democracy, whether it be in Nazi-occupied Norway or in Chicago.

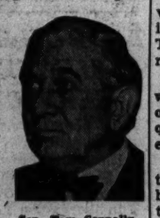
HEARING STARTS TODAY ON FLYNN CHOICE AS ENVOY

Charges by Bridges Will Be Aired.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—The stage was set tonight for the opening of one of the most sensational hearings on Capitol Hill in many a year—the investigation by the senate foreign relations committee into the qualifications of Edward J. [Paving Blocks] Flynn, Democratic party boss chosen by President Roosevelt as minister to Australia and roving ambassador in the southwest Pacific war zone.



Sen. Tom Connally.

Flynn's nomination has touched off verbal explosions thruout the nation, with the boss of the Bronx and retired chairman of the Democratic national committee attacked as unfit for so responsible and delicate a position. Mr. Roosevelt has been accused, too, of paying off a political debt to Flynn, for conducting his third term campaign, in appointing Flynn to the $10,000 a year post.

Hearing Will Be Public.

The public hearing on the nomination, at which charges will be aired and Flynn's defense made, will begin tomorrow morning. The large and decorative caucus room of the senate office building has been selected for the hearings to accommodate the crowds expected because of wide public interest.

The administration is expected to open fire with its big guns in support of Flynn's appointment. A representative of the state department is slated as the first witness and Sen. Tom Connally [D., Tex.], chairman of the foreign relations committee, said he probably would be Breckinridge Long, assistant secretary of state.

Another assistant secretary of state, Adolf A. Berle Jr., is on record as denouncing Flynn's administration as chamberlain of New York City, in which job Berle succeeded the party boss, according to one of the charges against Flynn, so the administration hardly favors Berle as a witness in Flynn's behalf.

Formal Charges by Bridges.

According to Sen. Styles Bridges [R., N. H.], who has filed formal charges against Flynn with the senate committee, Flynn lost more than one million dollars in city funds while chamberlain by investing them in the shaky State Title and Mortgage company, which later collapsed. Flynn's law firm became general consul to this company, according to Bridges.

He also charged Flynn with representing thru his law firm a Serge Rubinstein, said to be friendly with the Japanese government just prior to Pearl Harbor and to have given large sums of money to the Japs.

Bridges also accuses Flynn of having been given a "whitewash" by a Bronx grand jury in its probe of his appropriation of 9,000 city-owned paving blocks which he had planted on his country estate as a Belgian courtyard, using city labor to perform the work.

Gangster a Deputy.

Another charge made by Bridges is that Flynn while sheriff of Bronx county, New York, appointed the late Dutch Schultz, notorious gangster, as a deputy sheriff. Schultz later met his doom in a gangland assassination.

According to the tentative schedule of witnesses before the committee, Flynn will be given an opportunity to testify in his own behalf after the state department has made its recommendation on the appointment, or will be allowed to wait until later if he wishes. The next testimony is expected to be presented by the New York Citizens' Committee to Reopen the Flynn Case, which prepared most of the data upon which Bridges based his accusations.

SHOT BY STRAY BULLET.

Sam Piasecki, 30 years old, 5451 Cornell avenue, a musician, was taken to the Bridewell hospital by police yesterday for treatment of a gunshot wound in his right hand. He said he had been hit by a stray bullet at 47th street and Wentworth avenue.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

C. F. W. writes: "While in Chicago recently on a seven day furlough, I heard about an International Business Machine school in the new postoffice, but on returning to camp no one could tell me anything about it. I would like to know how to go about applying and the requirements."

ANSWER: What you heard about wasn't a school but an office employing fully qualified enlisted personnel. Talk with your adjutant about assignment.

V. L. asks: "Please let me know what rating and for what department of the navy a lithographer could qualify. I have had six years' experience."

ANSWER: The navy has no particular place for one with your skill but it is suggested you write a letter to the Engineer Section [Topol], Directorate of Base Services, Army Air Forces, Washington, D. C. In your letter, give your age, draft and marital status, classification, if any, and the number and location of your draft board. In addition, state your education and experience and include letters of recommendation covering your civilian experience.

L. C. writes: "I was married in May of 1938. We have a child that was born March 5, 1942, three months after war was declared, but because the child was born after Pearl Harbor, the draft board declared I belong in the same class as men married after war was declared. I feel I should be classed as a married man with a dependent child."

ANSWER: Your draft board is in error. You are a "normal 3-A man" with a dependent child and not subject to call until other men in your board with a similar dependency status are being called. If your board classifies you 1-A before your normal time and before exhausting men with a lesser degree of dependency, you can appeal.

Test Your Facts

Below each of the following questions are listed three answers. Make your choice, turn to page 23 in the want ad section for the correct answers, and mark your score:

1. According to Greek mythology a member of a race that was half man and half horse was a
[a] Dolphin. [b] Centaur. [c] Pegasus.

2. Nicolo Paganini was a virtuoso on the

BRUSHING WITH MAKESHIFT CLEANERS MAY RUIN FALSE TEETH

TOOTHPASTES AND TOOTH POWDERS and household cleansers are not intended for false teeth—dental plates are much softer than natural teeth. Many of these "makeshift" cleansers are so abrasive that continued use may ruin costly dentures.

DO THIS EVERY DAY!

SOAK IN POLIDENT!
No brushing, no scouring—simply put one capful of POLIDENT in ½ glass of lukewarm water. Stir briskly. Place plate or bridge in this solution for 15 min., or overnight if convenient. Then, rinse well and use.

PLAY SAFE . . . USE POLIDENT
Soaking plates and bridges regularly in Polident dissolves ugly stains and cloudy film that collect daily, cleans those hard-to-reach places without the dangers of brushing; maintains their original natural appearance.
Polident is recommended by many leading dentists and approved by leading makers of denture materials.

FLYNN JURY GETS RAPE STORY FROM MISS SATTERLEE

Describes Two Alleged Attacks on Yacht.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 19 (AP).—Speaking in low tones, Peggy La Rue Satterlee, 16 year old brunette night club entertainer, charged from the witness stand today that Errol Flynn, film actor, twice raped her aboard his yacht during a week-end cruise to Catalina Island in August, 1941.

Her testimony was virtually the same as that she gave at a preliminary hearing for Flynn. The actor also is accused of statutory rape by Betty Hansen, 17, a Lincoln, Neb., girl who came to Hollywood seeking a movie career.

Music and Art Lovers Having Special Treats

BY JUDITH CASS.

CHICAGOANS who in other years would be planning a trip to some far off sunny place have no time this week to mourn that pleasure, in the discard for the duration. This week is setting some sort of record for the usual quiet January of pre-war years.

Orchestra hall, the Art institute, and the Palace theater will be ablaze with lights tonight, and music and art lovers will don their warmest boots and coats to sally forth for an evening of unusual interest. The fourth and final concert of the Woman's Symphony orchestra will be presented in Orchestra hall, with Margaret Speaks, soprano, as the soloist. Miss Speaks sang with the orchestra last April in Minneapolis before an enthusiastic audience of 12,000, so the symphony's Chicago friends are looking forward with special pleasure to tonight's concert. After the program the board of directors of the orchestra will go to the Camellia House at the Drake for a supper party to celebrate the closing of a successful season. Miss Speaks and the orchestra's conductor, Nicolai Malko, will be special guests at the supper.

Some of those who have taken boxes for the concert are Mrs. James G. Shakman, president of the directors; Mrs. Donald S. Boynton, Mrs. Walter D. Monroe, Mrs. Eugene McDonald Jr., Mrs. Burt Denman, Mrs. William H. Stanley, and Mrs. George Woodruff.

Miss O'Keeffe to Be Guest at Dinner Before Preview.

A preview of the retrospective exhibit of paintings and drawings by Georgia O'Keeffe, which will be open to the public tomorrow, will be held tonight at the Art institute for members of the Society for Contemporary American Art and their guests. The society is giving a dinner beforehand at the University club, located conveniently across the street, at which the artist is to be a guest. Also present will be Mitchell A. Wilder, curator of the Taylor museum at Colorado Springs, Colo., which has lent a second exhibit opening tomorrow at the institute, religious folk art of the Spanish southwest. Mr. Taylor came to Chicago to supervise the opening here and to be the Scammon Fund lecturer on Friday at 2:30 o'clock in Fullerton hall at the institute.

Mrs. Graham Aldis, the Frederick Picks, who own an O'Keeffe, and Mrs. Harold Florsheim, who owns "The Wave," also by Miss O'Keeffe; the Daniel C. Riches, William Darrow, the Clinton B. Kings, and Mr. and Mrs. Meyric Rogers are some of those who will attend the dinner and preview. Mrs. John L. Cochran arranged the party.

Polish Hospital to Benefit from Showing of Movie.

Chicago, as the second largest Polish city in the world—the largest now, perhaps, depending on conditions in Warsaw—hopes to establish a Chicago ward at the Paderewski hospital in Edinburgh, Scotland, which is caring for Polish refugees in England. The motion picture, "Hitler's Children," to be shown tonight only at the Palace, will benefit the hospital to the extent of $1 a seat. The few seats still unsold may be purchased at the theater tonight.

Col. Anthony Jurasz, medical director of the hospital, will speak briefly after showing of the film, which will start at 8:45 o'clock and continue for 77 minutes. "You, John Jones," will be presented afterwards. Chauncey McCormick, head of the committee that organized the benefit, feels that a Chicago ward is assured because of gifts of money from many Polish organizations here. The Polish Women's alliance, headed by Mrs. Honorata Wolowska, has collected the handsome sum of $10,000.

Dr. Louis Mann, the Julius Smietankas, the Jan Staneks, the Paul Drymalskis, Judge and Mrs. Peter Schwaba, the Marion G. Kudliches, the John Konopas, and many others well known in Polish circles have taken seats for the performance. Col. Jurasz will dine with the McCormicks. Also giving dinner parties are Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr., Mrs. Herbert Bradley, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, Mrs. Jacob Baur, and Mrs. James M. Hopkins.

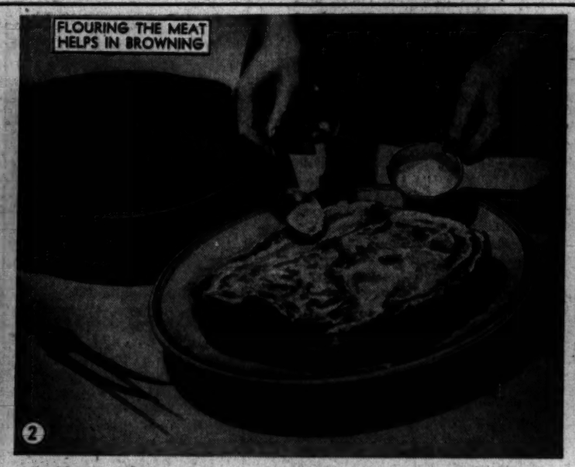
Hugh Claytons Become Parents of a Daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Clayton [Antoinette de Bellissen], who were married in Paris two years ago, became the parents of a daughter, Virginia Helen, on Sunday at St. Joseph's hospital. The baby, who was named for her grandmothers, is the first grandchild of the J. Paul Claytons of Winnetka.

The senior and junior groups of the Glencoe center of the Infant Welfare society will meet at 2 o'clock today at the Skokie Country club. Tea will be served.

These Easy to Follow Steps Turn an Ordinary Pot Roast Into a Special Meat Dish

1. Here's an ordinary arm pot roast from the chuck or shoulder of beef. We're going to make it an extraordinary pot roast by marinating it over night in a solution of vinegar, salt, pepper, savory, and thyme. One-fourth cup of vinegar with 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon savory, and ⅛ teaspoon thyme is brushed over the meat with a pastry brush.



2. Now we flour the meat and brown it well in meat drippings in a heavy skillet. The next step is to add ¼ cup water (no more than that at a time, or we'll have stewed, not braised, meat), cover the skillet, and turn the heat very low. Or we may put the pot roast into a 325 degree oven. This piece of meat will probably require 3 hours of cooking.

3. Potatoes, whole carrots, and sliced onions may be added to the cooking meat about 45 minutes before it should be done. More water also may be added at this time, and salt and pepper for the vegetables. Cooking is continued at the same low temperature until meat and vegetables are tender. Small amounts of water may be added at intervals, if it cooks off.

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

4. The tender meat and vegetables are removed to a hot platter and we may now make gravy from the drippings and liquid in the skillet. To complete this dinner, let's have a big bowl of mixed greens with French dressing, some cornmeal muffins, and baked apples for dessert. Perhaps we may even have some coffee.

Miss O'Keeffe's Paintings Filled with Integrity

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

The stimulating exhibition of 61 paintings by Georgia O'Keeffe which opens tomorrow at the Art institute is the largest and most comprehensive collection of this American's canvases ever to be shown at a museum.

Miss O'Keeffe came here from New York to arrange the display herself. At one time she was a student at the Art institute. Her birthplace was Sun Prairie, Wis. She is the wife of the famous photographer, Alfred Stieglitz, and it was in his gallery, given over to modern art, that her first paintings were shown in 1916. Today she is one of the most celebrated of all American painters.

The three galleries glow with the clear, clean, luminous color of her gigantic flower studies, her New Mexican landscapes with their great, mysterious masses of mountains, her austere depictions of Canadian and New York statehouses, her powerful abstractions, and her meticulous and dramatic depictions of shells and of the sun bleached animal skulls she has found along old New Mexican trails.

The greatest characteristic of her work is its integrity. She is a master craftsman and everything she does shows her complete control of her medium, but beyond this mechanical skill, important as it is, is her absolute honesty. Also there is a combination of intense emotion, penetrative imagination, and great delicacy of feeling in her art. She is able to capture the very essence of the place or the flower or the plant she is painting.

She does this partly by condensing and eliminating, by concentrating on what, to her, is the spirit or ego of her subject. Thus, the very small but highly intense "Red Poppy," which she painted in 1928 is a universal concept; it is the ultimate truth of this flower, now and forever.

And again in her "Black Cross, New Mexico," she epitomizes that whole region. The massive, primitive religious symbol dominates the landscape with tremendous power, seeming even more eternal than the cone-like hills, ranging under it to the horizon.

Compare that canvas with "Cross by the Sea," which the artist painted in Canada a few years later. Here a primitively made, tall, slender wooden cross points to the ethereal blue of the sky and is seen against the vastness of the ocean. The little white picket fence with which it is encircled makes it somehow very touching, very human.

Miss O'Keeffe has included several glimpses of the ancient church at Ranchos de Taos in her exhibition. The visitor also may see a camera study of it in a nearby gallery where hangs a series of excellent photographs of the New Mexican country by Ernest Knee.

Also contemporary with the O'Keeffe show at the institute is a most artistically arranged exhibition of religious folk art of the Spanish southwest, lent by the Taylor museum of Colorado Springs, Colo.

The O'Keeffe paintings will be on view until Feb. 22.

Lake City Club Luncheon.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

The Soul of Propriety.

The girl is graceful as a faun. She has great dark eyes set in a small, pointed face. So, the office force nicknamed her "Bambi." All of her coworkers call her that except one—he, adhering rigidly to convention, calls her Miss Bambi.

Not All Right.

"After years of using the term 'alright' I have been told that it is incorrect," writes Part Time Worker. "My grammar books do not enlighten me and I thought you would know. If I am wrong in this instance, perhaps I also am mistaken in thinking that to end a letter with the phrase, 'Thanking you for taking care of this, we are . . .' is outmoded. It is used frequently in the office where I now do part time work."

The phrase is "all right," two words, but you are quite "all right" in your opinion of the premature thanks for "taking care of this." "Successful Letter Writing," by Hower, states:

"The 'ing' word closings are happily dying out. They say nothing; they do not get action; they are out-of-date. Sometimes they are even ludicrous:

"'Thanking you in advance for past favors.

"The commoner offenders are: thanking, trusting, hoping, anticipating, and assuring. If an expression of thanks is necessary at the end of the letter, it is correct to use a simple 'thank you.'"

From Small Beginnings.

A popular candy manufacturer got her start by making candy for church socials. . . . A brilliant designer owes her career to the encouragement of her first instructor, who emphasized always her successes and not her failures by saying "This is good; do more along this line." . . . One of America's outstanding hotel women "took over" when her husband died, as have many women under such circumstances. For instance, the Chicago florist who attributes her "business sense" to the standard her husband set for the company she now manages. . . . A woman who has been conspicuously successful employing and training telephone operators started to work, temporarily, during summer vacation and never went back to school. . . . At least one old Chicago family has beautiful service plates made by a woman who discovered she had a gift for pottery, china, and tableware while convalescing in a hospital from an illness. . . . But, the oddest motivation for a career was George Sand's. She peeked in her husband's will before he died and was so upset by the terms she ran off to Paris and became a famous novelist.

Aprons Leave the Kitchen for Dress Parade

BY REA SEEGER.

Remember the charm of the immaculate white aprons on the Welsh women in the film, "How Green Was My Valley"? Now, after years of banishment in the kitchen, aprons have appeared in the fashion parade. They're not, of course, the coveralls or the large enveloping affairs seen in that film, but airy extras made of sheer white and pastel colored organdy or slick beauties made of flowered, glazed chintz.

Aprons of any material are as feminine as a lipstick; they're vastly alluring when they are of silk in crêpe or taffeta, worn with simply cut, dark dresses. When such a genius as Lily Dache wears an apron as part of her daytime or even party dresses no wonder the fashion is established.

Cerise, vivid green, bright blue, mauve, and many pastels can be used for these aprons that you no doubt will make yourself. The sheer organdies, dimities, lawns, and flowered chintz are all made ready to wear. Delectable color contrasts are available: tearose pink with delphinium blue rickrack braid trim, pale blue with cherry red and daffodil yellow band trim on white, colored smocking, bands of dainty flowered material contrasted with white, or small refreshing checks worked in the same contrast.

Flowered glazed chintz is used with downright magic for some slightly more utilitarian aprons . . . the aprons with the shoulder straps, the tiny bib, the three gored skirt, and a big bow tied at the back.

Woman's Club Will Hear Talks on War Problems

Two speakers will be presented today at the Chicago Woman's club to lecture on war problems. At 11 o'clock, appearing under auspices of the education and philosophy department, Dr. Robert J. Havighurst, faculty member of the University of Chicago, will discuss the home front question, "What Is a Firm Foundation for Children in a Chaotic World?" Mrs. William J. Bogan, chairman of the committee on new trends in education, will preside. The 2 o'clock general club program will bring to the platform Philip Cummings, sociologist, who will talk on "World Conditions from the American Viewpoint."

Women in War Work

By Kate Massee

The first of a new 1943 series of war stamp corsages, a clever conceit for St. Valentine's day, designed in Hollywood, goes on sale in Chicago stores today. A forerunner of the series of seven designed by famous couturiers, it's a saucy, frilled affair with a heart in the center. With it Anne Jeffreys, movie starlet, wears matching earrings. Each corsage will contain nine 10 cent war savings stamps and will be sold for $1.

Harry A. Perlman, chairman of the war stamp committee, has announced that January has been set aside as inventory month. Those holding the 100 million outstanding stamp albums are asked to redeem them for bonds. Mr. Perlman also suggested that those owning 1942 corsages remove the stamps and paste them in albums for redemption.

Miss Geneva C. Williams, 5948 South Park way, who sang for eight years in THE TRIBUNE'S Chicagoland Music festivals was among the 53 Chicago area women inducted into the WAAC yesterday at the induction center, 166 West Van Buren street. Miss Williams, a Negro, is a dramatic soprano and a graduate of Wilberforce college.

The special feature of a career girls' dinner and fashion show to be held on Friday evening at Carson Pirie Scott & Co. will be the induction of 60 young women into the WAAC. First Officer [Capt.] Doris E. Epperson, regional director of the WAAC in this area, will preside as the induction officer and will address the dinner guests briefly.

First aid instruction on a mass production scale will be started Monday at Armour & Co.'s general office in the Stockyards, according to Miss Gay Swenie, women's personnel manager for the company. This will be the second series of Red Cross first aid courses at the plant.

A total of 300 women and 100 men have signed up for the new instruction. Each class will meet two nights weekly, between 5:30 and 7:30 o'clock. The instructors will be drawn from the 15 employés of the company qualified as first aid instructors. Miss Swenie said that enthusiasm is high and that more than 500 girls probably will be trained before the end of the year. E. J. Emond of the casualty department is in charge of the classes.

A new war training course in industrial chemistry will begin at the Illinois Institute of Technology on Monday. The 10 week course is tuition free, under the engineering, science, and management war training program.

High school graduation is required for entrance, and this must include a satisfactory record in high school chemistry or one year of college chemistry. Classes will meet 40 hours weekly, and the women will study general chemistry, quantitative analysis, organic chemistry, and mathematics. Upon completion of the course they are qualified to work as laboratory technicians in war industries.

The 66 women who completed a previous course have had offers of three jobs each. They average $1,586 annually in salaries. Women may apply at the women's division, 1951 West Madison street.

Two hundred service men will be guests at the second party and dance sponsored by the Rickenbacker chapter of the Women's Defense Corps of America, to be held Saturday evening at the Midland hotel, 172 West Adams street. Eve Tand, captain of the chapter, has made plans for an elaborate Hawaiian setting and music, as well as regular dance music. All service men are welcome.

TODAY'S $5 PRIZE RECIPE

Italian Style Spaghetti.
[A not-too-spicy version.]
[Serves eight or more.]

1 tablespoon cubed salt pork
1½ pounds ground beef, salted to taste
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 onion, chopped
½ green pepper, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1 No. 2 can tomatoes or 6 fresh ones
1 small can mushrooms or ½ pound fresh, sliced
1 small bottle olives, chopped, with liquid
¼ cup chopped parsley
1 cup Spanish sauce or tomato paste
1 pound spaghetti

Fry out salt pork and brown beef in the fat. Meanwhile cook onion, green pepper, and garlic in the olive oil without browning. Combine meat and onions and add remaining ingredients, except spaghetti, and simmer 1½ hours. Cook spaghetti in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and pour sauce over it.

Sponsor Wants WAAC Put on Par with Army

BY MARCIA WINN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19. — Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers [R., Mass.], mother of the WAACs, will introduce legislation in congress this session to have the women's corps taken into the army proper.

As the corps now stands, it is "with" the army but not in the army, a distinction which has created dissension as the navy women's corps, the WAVES, is in the navy. By placing the WAACs in the army the women would have the benefit of changed legislation for the army. They also would have the right to mark their mail "free" and national life insurance, altho Mrs. Rogers has introduced a separate bill asking for the latter.

In her original sponsorship of the corps, which was created thru the Rogers bill, Mrs. Rogers tried to have it incorporated in the army, but the war department was not in favor of it. In the urgency of getting the corps started the matter was dropped. Among other changes which embodiment in the army might bring would be an end of the unmilitary fancy titles now burdening WAAC officers—and all who try to utter them.

Since World War I., when she was a member of the Overseas league doing confidential work for the government, Mrs. Rogers' interests have had a pronounced military trend. This antedated her service in congress, for from 1918 to 1922 she was with the American Red Cross caring for disabled veterans and later served as the personal representative of three Presidents—Harding, Coolidge, and Hoover—in supervising veterans' hospitalization.

When she came to congress in 1925 to take the seat of her husband, the late John Jacob Rogers, she went on the veterans' committee. Tangible results of her interest were immediate. The first large bill introduced by a woman was hers. It created a 12 million dollar veterans' hospital and was the first large bill passed for a veterans' hospital. Now as ranking Republican member of the veterans' committee, she feels care should be taken to prevent the proximity in hospitals of men, already shell shocked in this war, with the shell shock victims of World War I.

As a family the Rogers have served the 5th Massachusetts congressional district for 28 years, during which the district has been redistricted three times. In the last election the Democrats put up no one against her. This has happened to no other woman in congress and to very few men.

One obvious reason for this lies in the many benefits she has brought the district during her nine terms here. In the middle '20s, when World War I. camps were being dissolved, she fought for the retention of Camp Devins. It now is Fort Devins, one of the largest military posts in the country.

Mrs. Rogers feels she has a perfect war record in that she has voted for every preparedness bill that has come up since she came to congress in 1925.

Thru the Looking Glass

The real cure for that gray cast of complexion that sets in when you're fatigued or have been ill, perhaps with a cold that has dragged on, is several good nights of sleep, preferably with the windows wide open. But there are other measures that help, too, and one of the best of these is the use of a mask.

Our own preference in the way of a mask as a pickup for the tired face is for something mild. Strong stimulants, we think, should be used in the professional treatment given by an expert and then only if the skin needs them and can take them. For the home beauty treatment we'll take one that's gentle in its action.

One such, wonderfully effective as a complexion pickup after the tough day, is a strawberry pink tinted cream, pleasant to look at, to smell and to use. It's applied after cleansing, as all complexion masks should be, and is left on for 15 or 20 minutes. If you can manage it, pop into a relaxing warm bath and leave the mask cream on while you lie contentedly in the tub.

This mask doesn't dry on the skin. It remains creamy and is wiped off with tissues. It doesn't overstimulate the tenderest skin, just gives it a pretty, soft glow that transforms you from a gray faced hag into a pink and white girl. The tired cast will have vanished, the skin surface will be soft and moist, and you'll have a little undertone of radiance that seems to take away years.

Ralph Pierce Gives Piano Recital with Some Bright Spots

Ralph Pierce appeared in piano recital at Kimball hall last night, giving a sketchy and rather completely muddled account of the music by Bach and Chopin which made up the first half of his program. His style was as mannered and labored as his technique was flabby, and the result was an inaccurate, misleading, and devitalized performance. The slow movement of the Italian Concerto fell apart under fumbling dissection, and the Chopin Ballade in A-flat minor was distorted almost beyond recognition. There was, however, an interlude in the Chopin Scherzo [B-flat minor] when Mr. Pierce ceased to use his hands as if they were dying fish. Suddenly they were crisp and capable, accurate, and even authoritative. It didn't last, but at least it gave you a heartening idea of what might happen if the pianist should decide to concern himself with such matters as structure, phrasing, and the radiance of a flawless scale.—C. Movie Depicts Children's Fate Under Naziism

"HITLER'S CHILDREN."
Produced by RKO-Radio.
Directed by Edward Dmytryk.
Adapted from novel, "Education for Death," by Gregor Ziemer.

THE CAST.

Karl Bruner .....Tim Holt
Anna Muller .....Bonita Granville
Prof. Nichols .....Kent Smith
Col. Hinkel .....Otto Kruger
The Bishop .....E. B. Warner
Franz Erhardt .....Lloyd Corrigan
Doctor Schmidt .....Erford Gage

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Hitler is our sun!
For Hitler we will live!
For Hitler we will die!

So chant the children of Nazi Germany.

You were born to rule.

So Nazi children are taught.

And they grow up hard and arrogant and cruel. . . . If they are very, very good they may whip. And if they rebel—they are whipped.

A Nazi girl must have no dream of a husband and a son and a home of her own. . . . Her one aim must be—to bear children for the state and the Fuehrer. . . . Because she has never known the joy of freedom—she accepts her fate in the person of any youth "from the camp down the road." And if she is a true disciple she may say as does a fiery eyed maiden in this film:

"My one hope is that I will have a great deal of pain when my child is born so that I can feel I have done much for the Fuehrer."

Had she balked—there would have been for her the concentration camp—and the women's hospital, where sterilization would have taken place that she might not "pass on criminal tendencies" to another generation.

As this exposé, informative and believable, unreels, an American school teacher is talking. He tells the story of Anna Muller, a German born American girl, in Germany to spend some years with her grandparents—Germans of the old school—and Karl Bruner, who had lived in America but had come home to be trained in Nazi ways. . . . The two young creatures love each other. Anna, daughter of naturalized parents, feels herself proudly to be an American thru and thru. Karl has lived over here long enough to acquire some appreciation of the beauties of freedom. . . . Anna goes to the American Colony school, Karl to the Nazi school next door. He becomes a member of the Gestapo.

Their tragical romance has an unexpected dénouement.

Bonita Granville and young Tim Holt are a tense and appealing pair of lovers. . . . Kent Smith, Otto Kruger, and H. B. Warner are fine in key rôles.

The film is not too long and was expertly directed.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 19.—Reginald Owen, since writing "Stable Mates," has stuck pretty close to acting, until he got hold of Bill McGuire's play "The Bad Penny," which he liked so much that he rewrote it. And now Metro is negotiating with Bill's wife, Lou McGuire, to buy it as a story for Mickey Rooney. In the meantime, Lou has gathered up all her husband's stories and properties, and is putting them into shape under the heading of "Fabulous McGuire," which Metro's mighty interested in. . . . Veronica Lake, just out of the hospital, felt so well she wanted to come back to work pronto. Director Mark Sandrich said, "Huh-uh. Your death scene will be mighty strenuous, so I want you to gather a week's strength for it." That's what she's doing. . . . Republic's "Tahiti Honey" has Simone Sarong Simone trouble! Seems she caught cold from overexposure, and is out of the picture for several days. They say it's bronchitis.

Should Be a Welcome.

His Name for It.

Comes an urgent letter from a sailor in the South Pacific: "Lay aside all thought of friendship and tell me, "Do you think the Lone Ranger will join the army?" Then goes on to say, "How about some pictures of our favorites—Ginger Rogers, Carole Landis, Alexis Smith, Paulette Goddard, Virginia Gilmore—to decorate our quarters. It's surprising how things of this sort perk up your morale." Buddy, I don't know when the sight of a pretty girl didn't perk up morale. . . . Bob Hope and Sidney Lanfield are at it again. Sidney directs "Let's Face It." . . . Otto Kruger, of the navy during the World war, met a sailor talking too loud and long in a cocktail room. Otto said, "See here, son, you can spout a whale of a story—but don't be a Jonah to your pals!" . . . Meanest crack of the week—that Frances Farmer is acting like the farmer's daughter. Lay off that girl—she's sick.

For Joyful Cough Relief, Try This Home Mixture

Saves Big Dollars. No Cooking.

This splendid recipe is used by millions every year, because it makes such a dependable, effective medicine for coughs due to colds. It is so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its soothing effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of cough medicine, very effective and quick-acting, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of coughs, giving quick relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

The Neighbors

"Yes, I think I understand this rationing, the way you explain it. But when I try to tell it to my family, it all comes out different."

Cold Modifies Society Dress at Benefit Play

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

Last night was a night for knee high wool socks, stadium boots, mittens, earmuffs, slacks, and other warmth giving appurtenances that aren't customarily associated with a fashionable theater opening.

The most unusual costume worn to the Civic Opera house, without doubt, was that of Mrs. Donald F. Bowey Jr., president of the Margaret Etter crèche for which the opening of "Lady in the Dark" was a benefit. Mrs. Bowey was the picture of chic in a snowy white evening gown and a snowy white ermine coat, and yet was as warm as toast, for her dress was made of suede. The jacket was edged about the collar and down the front with gold kid, and she carried a gold kid bag to match.

Stout overshoes peeked coyly from beneath the pastel wool evening wrap worn by Mrs. Edward Lehman, who added a fur jacket to her ensemble for extra warmth.

"I wouldn't wear evening clothes for anything tonight," declared Mrs. Peter Fortune, who looked smart as could be in a Persian lamb coat and matching muff, and a tiny hat of black with pink roses.

The William Smyths, Mrs. Thompson Haugan, and Mrs. Richard Bonner, who came in from Lake Forest for the opening, had dinner at the Electric club and arrived downstairs laden with galoshes and scarves. Mrs. Merrill Meigs, Mrs. Wayne Wills, Mr. and Mrs. Press Hodgkins, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woods Jr., the James C. Thompsons, the Orville J. Taylors, Mrs. Paul Walker, the Alden H. Littles, and Mrs. Leslie B. Olmsted were a few of those in the sold out house.

Among the pretty women beiling programs were Miss Eleanor McClurg, Miss Caterina and Miss Marianna Bolognesi, Miss Jeanne Stenson, Miss Alice Hooper and Miss Alva Faurot.

Parents' Tact, Understanding Aid Adolescent

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"My dear Mrs. Bevans: My daughter of 17 is upset, because she considers she is being treated like a child when I insist that I must know where she is going, with whom, and when I may expect her home. She is popular and has many invitations, and I don't want to spoil her chances with the boys or to create a wall of disaffection between my child and me.

"She says I'm out of date, fussy, and she's just got to be like all the other girls whose parents give them free rein, altho she admits they are all older than she is.

"It seems to me that it's essential to hold Grace to certain standards, but I want to do the right thing and would appreciate any suggestions you may have on handling young people."

Many parents, with sons and daughters in their teens, seem to fear that they will alienate them if they exercise a measure of authority over their comings and goings, behavior, friendships, and clothes.

In this I believe they are quite wrong. In their hearts young people realize their parents deserve their respect and consideration. They don't really expect to run their own show, altho it is nature's intention that they should try to do so. They know in their hearts that they aren't fitted for it yet. And they hold in esteem the father and mother who firmly retain a wise measure of control over their lives, in spite of the fact that they sometimes balk at restrictions.

Of course, you have to take into consideration your child's whole makeup, physical, mental and emotional, in dealing with an adolescent, but it seems to me that a few general rules thoughtfully followed should prove helpful.

1. Be reasonable in your requests.

2. Don't expect mature understanding from these children who are only in the process of becoming men and women.

3. Talk knotty problems over with them in a friendly manner.

4. Don't expect them instantly or always to see eye to eye with you under all circumstances. Be firm if necessary; don't nag.

5. Give them as much freedom as possible in things that don't matter, and respect their thoughts and sensibilities in things that seem important to them.

Softly Tailored Dresses

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESSES.

Softly tailored dresses are the kind busy women need for their social and war work programs. These two patterns make just such models. One is a two piece effect with waistline flatteringly defined with shirring alongside the slenderizing panels. The dress is attractive in either plain or printed materials. The other frock is more tailored, but with a casual air. The closing may be buttoned or fly-front.

Style No. 3195 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 2016 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 46, and 48 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material.

Each pattern costs 10 cents, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost (coin preferred—wrap it carefully), for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT: Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired and write your name and address plainly. The Clotilde pattern book costs 15 cents, 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

Front VIEWS and PROFILES

BY MARCIA WINN

Purposefully Dim.

"It's strange," the oculist was saying, "but there are some people who would rather not see too well. I had one patient, a lawyer, who acted more like a poet. I fitted him to glasses, but the next day he came back. 'The world is too sharp with these,' he said. 'The lines are too clear. That misty effect that I like so is all gone. Can't you give me some glasses that will make everything look a little hazy?' So I tested his eyes on the chart again and when we came to a row of figures that looked hazy to him, I gave him a prescription for glasses that would give him that hazy outlook. He went out into his soft-edged world very happy about it all."

It's a Polite World.

A woman in a Decatur restaurant was observed placing a silver cream pitcher under her coat. As she opened the door to leave she was met by a waiter holding a tray before him. He smiled and bowed, but said nothing as she stood there, obviously puzzled. Suddenly the woman produced the cream pitcher and placed it on the tray. The waiter smiled and bowed again, then marched triumphantly back to the kitchen.

Alma and the Birds.

Budgie, the black and white dog, and Betty, the gay little mongrel, bark and race back and forth in high spirits [reports Mrs. Carl Semrad] as their mistress hurries along the switch tracks on East North Water street to keep her daily tryst with the birds. Every day, sun or fog, rain or snow, for over two years Alma Harvey has brought dry bread to this spot and has filled a pan there with fresh water. She breaks the bread into crumbs with a small hammer and in weather like this cracks the ice that forms in the pan. Some days she brings cooked corn meal. "They like it warm," she says. On rainy days the damp soaks thru her thin, worn shoes, and in zero weather she shivers in her thin coat. She is neither young nor middle aged, but her eyes are happy and fearless and friendly. "Some days there are a hundred here," she says. "They seem to know me now and they all bring their friends."

Letter from a Soldier.

"Dear Opal:

"It's amazing how much you have been in my thoughts these last few days since coming up here. I'm constantly conscious of the fact I took you for granted—your crisp morning dress, your flashing smile, your merry brown eyes, your wit. Strange now that I never gave you an extra thanks for that remarkable trick you could do with crêpe suzettes, for the sheer grace of your arrangement of yellow daffodils in a yellow bowl, for that intuitive something or other that caused you to remove a breakfast baked apple and substitute a slim glass of tomato juice. With no word spoken, you seemed to sense that the revelry of the night before had turned into a dull ache above the eyes. And now that miles separate us my thanks are tardy, but, Opal, why didn't you tell me how to wring a mop out of hot suds and get in the corners with a scrub brush? Wish you were here.

"P. S.: Give your lazy husband my ruby cuff links. He has coveted them too long, the old black rascal."

Opal was the soldier's cook.

BY CECIL SMITH.

It is hard to imagine just why the weatherman should have borne a grudge against "Lady in the Dark" on its opening. But even his arctic efforts were useless, for a tremendous audience refused to be kept away from the season's most brilliant first night.

"Lady in the Dark" is to most other musical entertainments as "Tristan and Isolde" is to, let us say, "Martha." In addition to the inestimable possession of Miss Lawrence, it glories in the possession of a really novel and strong central idea. The basic vitality of Moss Hart's conception of a psychoanalytic dream fantasy is enhanced by Ira Gershwin's scintillant lyrics, Kurt Weill's haunting and beautifully composed score, Hassard Short's galvanizing production and lighting, and the well groomed ensemble of a picked cast of performers.

In many ways "Lady in the Dark" is a high point in the history of the American musical stage. It proves that a musical show can be both engrossing and magnificently entertaining without sacrificing high imagination, acute intelligence, superbly unified and thoroly artistic production, and—most remarkable of all—an underlying seriousness of purpose.

Mr. Hart did not intend to be trivial when he fashioned his story of a frustrated and frightened magazine editor, sending her to a psychiatrist and then translating her dreams and fantasies into musical ensembles. And the greatest glory of Miss Lawrence's incomparably versatile impersonation of the harassed Liza Elliott lies in her realization of Mr. Hart's full intention.

A truly marvelous unity of line and development runs thru her characterization. As she lies on the professional sofa during her interviews with Dr. Brooks, or as she tries to keep up her editorial work when her mind is straining at its confines, she discovers the tortured physical gestures and the tightness of voice of one who is suffering. And in the dream sequences, where her suppressed real self is set free, what lightness, what ease of movement, and what fresh nuances of voice are released in her!

Liza Elliott is a perfect character for Miss Lawrence, and a suitable reward for the arduous years of her climb to the top of the acting world. Without relinquishing for a moment her claim to dramatic distinction, she can dance as saucily as she used to in the "Charlot's Revue" days; she can draw pathos from a song like "The Princess of Pure Delight," and she can go to town with intoxicating verve in the saga of Jenny, who always made up her mind. She is on the stage most of the time, and you never want her off it.

The men in Liza's life—Willard Parker as the celebrated "hunk of man," Hugh Marlowe as the sub-editor who speaks his mind too bluntly, and John Leslie as the man she is supposed to marry—handle their contributing parts with abundant effectiveness.

Margaret Dale, as an older confidante, holds her own against Miss Lawrence's dazzle, and Adrienne Moore and Ann Lee are also pungent in small bits. Richard Hale brings dignity and a focal force to the important rôle of the psychiatrist.

I shall not take the edge off your seeing of "Lady in the Dark" by describing the stupendously flexible kaleidoscope of scenes made possible by the four revolving stages, or the evocative imagination with which the dreams are carried thru. If you were never tempted by a Broadway musical before, don't miss "Lady in the Dark."

Prokosch Tells Dramatic Tale of Killing to Serve a Purpose

"The Conspirators," by Frederic Prokosch. [Harpers, $2.50.] Published today.

"Wide Is the Gate," by Upton Sinclair. [Viking, $3.]

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Frederic Prokosch, who has written four novels whose chief characteristic, I should say, was making reality out of the unrealities and subtleties, has chosen for the theme of "The Conspirators" the most undeniable reality of life—death. It is no simple seeping out or even snuffing out of life, however, which fills the 338 pages, but the dramatic business of killing with a purpose, and the death of a man whom the killer has never seen. The killer is a political prisoner escaped from his incarceration with the special job of doing away with the man who has been responsible for his imprisonment . . . a man who turns out to be, of course, a Nazi agent in disguise.

The story which Mr. Prokosch tells with unwonted dash and suspense, for he is by nature a leisurely writer and one given to rolling in the beauty of language the way a kitten rolls in catnip, is the story of how the prisoner, Vincent, pursues his quarry, and of the pursuit of Vincent by the police. There are tense moments for every one, and the reader shares in each character's fears and compulsions, thus piling up a cumulation of excitement.

Lisbon, Portugal, is the scene of this tense tale of pursuit and revenge, made more exciting by the hero's knowledge that he must do murder and his lack of knowledge of whom he must kill.

"The Conspirators" may well be Mr. Prokosch's most popular book, even if it is not, artistically, his best.

"Wide Is the Gate" by Upton Sinclair continues the "World's End" series of fictionized history thru the first part of the Spanish civil war, and of Lanny Budd, hero of the series thru an emotional period in which he gives up one wife and acquires another.

Lanny explains to his father about his broken marriage: "Irma and I disagree in our ideas, and it makes her unhappy; she wants me to give up my ideas and I can't. That's all there is to it." To which his father asks: "Your ideas mean more to you than your wife and child?" Lanny replies: "They mean more to me than anything else, including life."

Those few sentences are as accurate a description of "Wide Is the Gate" as anything that any one could write. For the book is not so much a novel about living people as a novel about ideas. The ideas which Lanny was created to represent are the ideas of the anti-fascists. Lanny, altho the son of great armaments makers, has a social conscience about war and about his fellow men. He keeps every one of his rich and powerful connections, but he lives thus the better to carry on his work for the anti-fascists, for the anti-Nazi underground workers in Germany, later for the Republican forces of Spain.

Lanny, as a dealer in paintings, as well as the husband of one of the richest women in America, the father of the richest American baby, and the son of the great Budds, moves about on the European continent with a legitimate business and a solid social background to cover his real work of helping the anti-Nazis and the anti-fascists. He calls Hermann Goering by his first name, talks to Mussolini, spends an illuminating few hours with Hitler on his mountain top while the car which waits for him at the gate shelters a refugee from Hitler's Gestapo, rides in a great Franco general's car to a town in Spain where he contrives a dramatic and spectacular escape of a young British prisoner of war, a volunteer with the Republicans, sells a Goya for $25,000 which he anonymously turns over to the Russian relief, all with the greatest of ease. Lanny plays the most dangerous of all games, the game of letting both your right and left hand know what the other is doing but never letting them get mixed up in their gestures.

Small in Size, These 3 Books Bulk Large in Their Content

"H. M. Corvette," by Nicholas Monsarrat. [Lippincott, $1.75.] Published today.

"Arrows Into the Sun," by Jonreed Lauritzen. [Knopf, $2.50.] Published Monday.

"Happy Land" is a short story [92 pages] which will be taken to the hearts of hundreds of thousands of American readers. It is the kind of story that almost anybody could have written and almost anybody would have liked to write—and it might concern almost everybody in our "Happy Land."

It is the story of young Rusty Marsh, son of the local drugstore keeper in a small town so far from the sea that he had never smelled its salt, who joined the navy when his country needed him. It is the story of the way his father, a veteran of the first World war, took the news of his death, and of the return of Rusty's grandfather, a long dead veteran of the Civil war. Without doing much talking, Grandpa makes it plain to Rusty's father [and to Mr. Kantor's readers] that while there are boys like Rusty in this great and happy land willing to die for it, it will be a great and happy land.

"H. M. Corvette" is the story of the author's 17 months in one of the British navy's corvettes, one of those small, swift, deadly little boats that help make convoys safe. It is a very British tale, British in its reserve as well as in its material. But a good part of the reserve, one gathers, is due to censorship. "Owing to security reasons it is less interesting than it might be," says the author in his preface, amusingly called "Two Minute Alibi." "But that, of course, is one of the horrors of war, to be patiently borne by writer and reader alike."

The reader gets a pretty vivid impression of what convoy duty is like, despite "security reasons." Altho the task itself is a humorless one, Lt. Monsarrat manages to inject a smile into his pages, as, for instance, when he says, "There is a steady deterioration of food during trips; we have had five days or so of comparative comfort, and then beans set in, and corned beef, and tinned sausages, and biscuits ominously labeled with the name of a firm which in peace time was famous among doglovers the world over."

"Arrows Into the Sun" is not "small" in the same sense that the other two books are small. It is small in its size rather than in content, for it lives with its hero the crises in his life when, as a quarter bred Navajo Indian boy, his mother is killed by the Mormons. His white father takes him to a Mormon camp for a while, he falls in love with a Mormon girl and he must make a decision about which corpuscles of his mixed blood will rule him.

Mr. Lauritzen has a delicate sense of the beauty of the canyon country of Arizona—he not only feels it thru his own pores, evidently, but he is able to give his hero the authentic oneness with nature which tradition has always given the Indian. F. B.

EVERY WORD CONTAINS A HIDDEN STORY OF ITS ORIGIN Alert!
ALERT, now meaning "air raid alarm!", comes from early French à l'erte, "on the watch." This, in turn, came from Italian all' erta, "on a watchtower or height." When the first field hospital was organized to follow an army, the French called it hôpital ambulant, "walking hospital," from the Latin ambulare, "to walk." Eventually hôpital was dropped and ambulant became ambulance, a vehicle for conveying casualties. Sabotage, now the malicious hindrance of production, comes from French sabotar, "to work carelessly"—originally, "to tread with wooden shoes, or sabots."

M'KIBBIN SCORES KELLY RULE OF SCHOOL SYSTEM

Albert and Boyle Join in Condemnation.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

George B. McKibbin last night made his first public appearance since he was chosen as the regular Republican organization candidate for mayor, at a meeting of a citizens' school committee, where two other primary candidates, Arthur F. Albert, Republican, and John S. Boyle, Democrat, joined him in attacking Mayor Kelly's administration of the public schools.

Boyle, who beat the Democratic machine to become 16th ward alderman in 1939, spoke first for 10 minutes. Albert talked for more than half an hour, covering many subjects in his driving style.

Altho he had called McKibbin a stooge for Gov. Dwight H. Green and Mayor Kelly, Albert left before McKibbin could reply. McKibbin made a dignified talk that lasted only six minutes.

Schools McKibbin's Topic.

McKibbin stuck to the subject of schools. He told how his mother, widowed when he was 6 years old, had taught school and helped send him to college. He pointed out that the oldest of his five children is a school teacher in Streator and that he has served as trustee of Iowa Wesleyan college and of the Chicago Y. M. C. A. college.

"The greatest blight on the good name of Chicago is the fact that spoils politics has wasted our school funds, that machine politics has interfered with and terrorized our loyal teaching force," McKibbin said.

"Thru 10 years of political misrule by the present administration, the educators of America and the people of Chicago have lost faith in Chicago's public schools."

Pledged to Destroy Machine.

McKibbin said he was pledged to destroy the political machine; that he realized it was not the business of the mayor to run the schools in detail, but he would appoint a board of education consisting of men and women of proved ability and integrity, give them a free hand, and hold them strictly accountable.

Albert declared that the substitution of McKibbin for Roger Faherty as the Republican organization candidate showed that "they changed the actors, but the plot's the same."

"I come to talk for the little boys and girls who can't defend themselves against the vultures squandering the money that should buy better education," he said. "The mayor should assume full responsibility for the acts of his appointees, as I will do when you can call me Mayor Albert."

Boyle Condemns Patronage.

Ald. Boyle said that the sword of political patronage which makes aldermen subservient also dangles above the heads of school board members and employés.

"There is nothing complicated about having a good, progressive school system," said the Democratic speaker. "All it requires is to have persons on the board of education and as superintendent of schools who are interested primarily in the welfare of the children and not in their own personal gains."

Faherty withdrew in favor of McKibbin yesterday, the last day for withdrawals, according to plan. Robert McCormick Adams, another G. O. P. entrant, also withdrew and issued a statement saying he would take an active part in the campaign. It has been reported that he will help Albert.

4,000 TO RECEIVE CONTINUED FREE WATER THRU WAR

The promised investigation of the city's "free water" accounts, thru which more than 4,000 individuals and organizations receive about $750,000 worth of water without charge each year, is going to be shelved for the duration of the war.

This was disclosed yesterday by Ald. Walter J. Orlikoski [35th], chairman of a special city council free water subcommittee named last Nov. 5 by Ald. James B. Bowler [25th], finance committee chairman.

Orlikoski said he will recommend to the finance committee that once the war is ended, the "free water" list will be carefully scrutinized, and that those individuals and organizations still permitted to receive water without charge be required to install meters so the city will have a record of their water consumption.

OWI AIDS KELLY ELECTION DRIVE, BROWN CHARGES

The federal office of war information is distributing 200,000 copies of a 100 page picture pamphlet entitled "The Negro in the War" in an attempt to aid Mayor Kelly in his campaign for reëlection, Edgar G. Brown, director of the National Negro council, said yesterday.

"The council considers this new booklet to be New Deal political propaganda," Brown said. "It also is a waste of newsprint of which there is a dire shortage for legitimate newspapers. We will ask the congress to investigate this extravagance."

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Robert Sanchez, 1121 Newbery avenue.]

THE QUESTION.

What do you intend to be when you grow up? [Asked of newspaper boys.]

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

Phillip Herrera, 744 Taylor street—After selling papers for so many years I think I've learned what people prefer to read. With an understanding like that I think I could be a successful newspaper publisher. I'd print such a fine paper that all newspaper boys would make lots of money.

Samuel Cordro, 831 Cabrini street—Much of the money that I earn from selling newspapers is spent on aviation magazines. I'm sold on being an aviator. I'm going to fly the speediest pursuit ships there are. To be a pilot of a Spitfire is really my life's ambition.

Vincent Pacelli, 726 De Koven street—Even tho I have had quite a bit of experience in the business world I feel I'd like to devote my future to football. I'd like to play it professionally as long as I'm able and after that I think I could make a living as a football coach.

Peter DeGuglielmo, 717 Taylor street—I sell papers in the loop and have many opportunities to talk to soldiers and sailors. After learning about all their experiences I know I want to be a captain in the army air corps and fly the biggest and fastest planes there are.

Anthony Christopher, 708 Cabrini street—Everything that's mechanical has always interested me. Even clocks. I like to take them apart and often wish I could put them back together again. I'd like to be a mechanic so I could repair all kinds of engines.

Lupe Toribio, 905 South Halsted street—I want to be an airplane constructor. By the time I'm old enough to hold a job like that there will be many improvements in planes. I think it would be great work with the speedy plastic ships.

202 ALDERMANIC CANDIDATES FILE BEFORE DEADLINE

Only 2 Incumbents Face No Opposition.

An expected last minute rush of candidates to the election board offices in the city hall before filing deadline yesterday brought to 202 the number of entrants for the Feb. 23 aldermanic elections. This total may be reduced substantially by Feb. 3, the last day a candidate may withdraw his name from the ballots.

Several interesting contests were indicated by the filings. One is in the 1st ward, where the Business Men's committee drafted James McVittle, head of a metal plating and refinishing company, to run against the city hall machine entry, John Budinger. The incumbent, Michael [Hinky Dink] Kenna, the only man besides the late John [The Bath] Coughlin to represent the ward in the last 50 years, is retiring voluntarily.

Three Enter in 2d Ward.

Another heated contest looms in the 2d ward, where Ald. Earl B. Dickerson, Democrat, has lost the city hall indorsement to a fellow Negro, William H. Harvey, the choice of Congressman William L. Dawson, one-time Republican. Dickerson filed, nevertheless, as did Mack Atkins, colored undertaker, backed by William E. King's strong G. O. P. organization.

Six candidates appeared for the 5th ward seat of former Ald. Paul Douglas, now a marine corps captain. There are nine entries for the 7th ward post left vacant by the death of Ald. Thomas J. Daley. Six persons filed for the 10th ward seat, until recently occupied by Congressman William A. Rowan.

The 14th ward seat, vacated by the election of Ald. James J. McDermott to the board of review, has four aspirants. The late Ald. William V. Pacelli's 20th ward post has six seekers, as has the 33d ward seat that has remained vacant since the death of Ald. Vincent S. Zwiefka.

Out to Beat Republican.

In the 40th ward the Democrats have entered a strong candidate against Ald. Joseph C. Ross, Republican, who is in the midst of a feud with the ward leaders of his party.

Only two sitting aldermen remained unopposed. They are Fred Fischman [24th] and Edward J. Upton [30th], both of whose wards are Democratic strongholds.

Five other wards will avoid runoffs, required wherever no candidate gets a clear majority of all votes cast. They are the 1st, 9th, 25th, 28th and 31st, each of which had two filings.

Five women are candidates. They are: Joan Place [5th], Alice Yonik [11th], Florence Tye Jennison [20th], Mrs. Louise D. Gulbor [44th], and Mrs. Catherine Reutel [45th].

REGISTER EARLY! LISTS WILL OPEN FRIDAY AT 1 P.M.

John S. Rusch, chief clerk of the Chicago board of election commissioners, said yesterday about 450 persons would be on duty at 145 Chicago fire houses Friday, Saturday, and Monday to receive registrations and changes of address for the mayoral primary and aldermanic election of Feb. 23. The registration officers will be on duty from 1 to 9 p. m. each day. The deadline is Monday night.

Registrations and changes of address also may be made at the board of election commissioners' office in room 308 at the city hall from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. each day thru Monday. Changes of address may be made by postcard or letter.

Why Thousands of Doctors Ordered This For CHILDREN'S BAD COUGHS
(CAUSED BY COLDS)
Mothers are simply overjoyed about Pertussin because often the first spoonfuls help bring PROMPT relief from bronchial and croupy coughs due to colds. And Pertussin is so pleasant and safe for kiddies to take! Nothing to sicken delicate little stomachs—it's entirely free from dope, chloroform and coal tar products.
Pertussin is scientifically prepared to act at once to relieve your child's coughing spasm. It increases natural secretions in the respiratory tract to soothe dry irritated membranes. It improves ciliary action, loosens sticky phlegm and makes it easier to raise. Also mighty effective for adults. Inexpensive! Any drugstore.

REDS DISRUPTING WAR SHIPMENTS, UNION HEAD SAYS the American Federation of Labor," declared Ryan.

"I claim that at the August and September meetings of the NMU here in New York, it was decided to invade the ILA, and the sum of $30,000 was taken out of the maritime union treasury as a starter toward that end."

Say Furriers' Union Helps.

Ryan added that the furriers' union, headed by Ben Gold, also a notorious Communist, had agreed to lend 15 of its expert "organizers" to the latest Red drive along the waterfront. Gold is an ancient enemy of Ryan's because the latter sat on a five-man AFL committee inquiring into the unwarranted furriers' strike of 1925 and exposed Gold's Communist activities.

Organizers have already become active along the waterfront, according to Ryan. He said they had been going along the docks and even aboard ships where the longshoremen were busy loading supplies for the fighting fronts, making glowing promises to the men of higher wages and better working conditions if they joined up with Bridges' organization, the International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's union of the Pacific coast.

Bridges has been in New York recently and has been directing the organizing drive from behind the scenes with Curran. The two men in direct charge, according to Ryan's information, are Sam Madell, a well known Communist, and "Wild Bill" Corbett, a disgruntled former member of the ILA.

The Communists have also revived publication of the Longshoreman, which purports to be issued by members of the ILA, but in reality is being put out by expert Red propagandists and follows the Communist line.

Interferes with Ship Loading.

"Naturally these activities are interfering with the good work our men are doing in the loading of these ships with vital war supplies," said Ryan. "We just have to take time out to stop this thing, as we have in the past.

"In peace time we can combat the Red activities without any help from the government, but now that we are in the war and such a vital industry as shipping is affected, I believe the President should issue concrete orders to Curran, Bridges, other union leaders and myself to commit no act harmful to the war effort. Yes, I'll make it stronger. I think it should be a direct command from the President of the United States.

"We all guaranteed the President of our coöperation at the beginning of the war, that our union organizations would render a full service. We should be obligated to keep that promise and any one violating it should be kept off the waterfront for the duration."

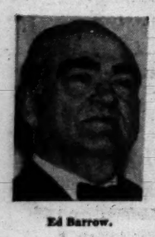
BRUINS BEAT CANADIENS, 5-2; INCREASE LEAD

YANKS, GIANTS MAKE PEACE ON EXHIBITIONS

Disputed Dates Are Yielded by Barrow.

New York, Jan. 19 (AP).—The feud between the Giants and Yankees over a couple of choice dates for exhibition baseball games was settled today without a blow being struck.



Ed Barrow.

After a couple of days of noisy bickering about whether the Yankees should play the Brooklyn Dodgers in Yankee stadium April 17 and 18, when the Giants also had exhibitions scheduled at the nearby Polo Grounds, Presidents Horace Stoneham of the Giants and Ed Barrow of the Yanks got together this afternoon and straightened out the matter in about 15 minutes.

Will Meet Dodgers April 16-18.

This enabled the Yankees to announce a 12 game exhibition schedule showing that the disputed series with the Dodgers will be played in Brooklyn April 16, 17, and 18.

A couple of concessions were all that was required to end the argument. Stoneham and Eddie Brannick, Giant secretary who had done most of the vocal sharpshooting, made the concession of crossing to the opposite corner of 42d street and 6th avenue to visit the Yankee offices. In return, Barrow yielded the disputed dates and returned to his original exhibition program.

One Conflict Remains.

One conflict in dates was left as Brooklyn will visit Yankee stadium April 9, 10, and 11 while the Giants have games scheduled against the Boston Red Sox in the Polo Grounds the 9th and 10th. The week-end just before the opening of the major league season was left to the Giants for their games against Washington.

The Yankees will open their exhibition program against the Newark Bears, their International league farm, at Plainfield, N. J., April 4.

COONEY, WANER DROPPED.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 19 (AP).—Intimating that they had about reached the end of their playing days, the Boston Braves today unconditionally released two of the National league's oldest players, Outfielders Johnny Cooney, who will be 42 in March, and Paul Waner, who is to be 40 in April.

It is likely, however, that those two veterans, whose professional baseball experience totals 41 years, disagree with President Bob Quinn, for, the latter explained, Cooney rejected his offer to place him in a managerial berth with a double A club because he was certain he could make another major league connection.

Both Cooney and Waner are residents of Sarasota, Fla., in the off season and intimate friends. Quinn said that Waner entertained similar hopes.

CRABTREE SIGNS WITH REDS.

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 19 (AP).—Estel Crabtree, 37 year old veteran outfielder, today signed with the Cincinnati Reds as pinch hitter, utility outfielder and coach, General Manager Warren C. Giles announced.

The move marks a return to baseball for the former St. Louis Cardinal, Crabtree having resigned as manager of the Rochester Red Wings in midseason last year because of ill health.

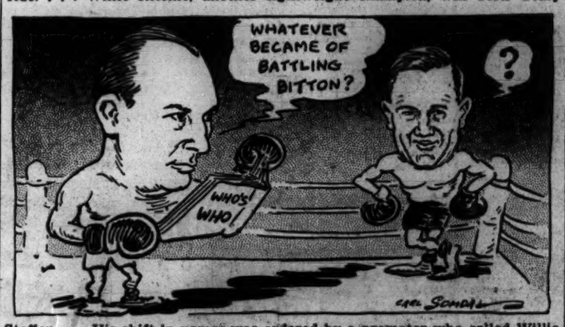
In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

ALTHO many professional boxers change their names, you'd be surprised how many of them, including the headliners, have had their ring designations thrust upon them. . . . Benny Leonard, for example, had intended to use his family name—Leinert—but an announcer introduced him as Leonard for one of his early professional bouts, so he let it ride. . . . Willie Ritchie, another lightweight champion, was born Geary



Steffen. . . . His shift in names was ordered by a promoter who called Willie in to sub for a Willie Richardson and wanted the name to sound as much like the original billing as possible. . . . Charley Ward of the Detroit Free Press, who cites these and other interesting examples, also recalls a fighter, long since forgotten, who was introduced to the fans as Battling Bitton. . . . The announcer had asked a second the name of his boy and the latter had replied, "O, it doesn't matter; he'll be so badly beaten no one will care who he is." . . . In the '80s, when Charley Comiskey was starring for the Browns and Cap Anson was head man for the Chicago Colts, there was no such thing as a team manager, altho both had complete charge of their clubs on the field. . . . The Browns beat the Colts, 4 to 2, in a six game series for the "world title" in 1886. . . . The winner-take-all share, after expenses were deducted, netted the Browns $13,000. . . . The unbeaten non-Big Ten drive recently completed by the Indiana university basketball team was the third such perfect performance in Coach Branch McCracken's five years as chief. . . . McCracken's first two fives took 19 straight nonconference decisions and his third and fourth teams lost only one game each. . . . Gerry Nugent Jr., 14 year old son of the owner of the Phils, wants to matriculate at Georgetown upon graduation from Philadelphia's La Salle High school, but his mother says it will be Villanova. . . .

"The Thorobred Horse," a booklet just published by the racing trade paper, The Blood Horse, carries the following concise foreword: "This booklet is published because so many people ask so many questions." . . . Alva Bradley of the Cleveland Indians feels he speaks for all major league club owners when he predicts they will operate at a loss in 1943, but feels it is baseball's duty to continue unless government orders to the contrary are issued.

It Happened in Dubuque.

Two young women were seated together in a Cleveland avenue bus and one of them, with tears in her eyes, was explaining to the other she had just come from seeing her husband off for Des Moines with a contingent of draftees.

"Don't feel so bad," said the second girl in a comforting tone of voice, "he'll be coming back for 14 days after he's inducted, won't he?"

"O, no," replied the first girl, weeping openly, "that's just the trouble; he's already been and was."

"And," comments Ernie Kretz, prophetically, "if this rationing of canned goods goes much farther, some of the little women will have to take time out to learn to cook."

Experience Speaks.

When I was ten I thought I knew
Just what was what and who was who.
And when fifteen there could not be
A person who knew more than me.
At twenty-one I came of age
And thought myself a wise old sage,
And still again at forty I
Dared any one me to defy.
But now that I have reached three score
I realize there is much more
For me to know, and now I find
I've lived with a retarded mind.
So don't you be the one to spurn
The opportunity to learn.

I Wonder Why.

I never spoke to you or called your name,
And yet I used to worship at your shrine;
Day after day I watched you as you came
Down the long, winding trail at day's decline;
I loved the warming sunshine of your smile,
The saucy carriage of your golden head,
Your eyes bespoke a bosom free from guile,
And there was music in your romping tread.

Ah, that was long ago, and you and I
Have lost each other in the shifting years,
Yet often in my dreams I wonder why
Your memory should waken smiles and tears;
The smiles we might have shared had you but known
The tears I shed in silence and alone.

PHILLIP'S LEAD IN BIG 10 GOES UP TO 32 POINTS

Illinois Star Runs Total to 92.

When the Big Ten basketball scoring race opened two weeks back it was freely predicted it would be a one-man affair with Wisconsin's Johnny Kotz setting the pace all the way. The season is a third along at this time and the one-man show has materialized but it doesn't greatly concern Kotz from where he is sitting in a tie for fourth place for all the attention is centered on handy Andy Phillip of Illinois.

The same Mr. Phillip, who took an early lead with 43 points in the first two games, added 23 and 26 in each of the two Iowa contests over the week-end and has now moved well out in front of all his opposition with a four-game total of 92 points on 40 baskets and 12 free throws.

Records in Danger.

His 26 points on Monday set a new individual high for a single game this season. The former total was his own 24 against Wisconsin.

If Andy can continue to be as handy in a scoring way the last two-thirds of the season he will break most every record in the books for individual point totals over the period of a conference campaign. Those marks appearing in the most imminent danger from Phillip's deadly firing are:

*Made under rules prevailing until 1924, when player who was fouled could designate any player to attempt the free throw.

The same Illinois-Iowa series produced another outstanding point-collector in Co-captain Tom Chapman of the Hawkeyes, who bounded into second place with 60 points.

Is There No End to Bentleys?

BARNEY ROSS IS LEADING HERO OF YOUNG BOXERS

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Corp. Barney Ross of the U. S. Marines and Guadalcanal now is a national hero but Barney has been a hero to the youngsters on Chicago's west side since he began his boxing career 14 years ago in Golden Gloves and went on to win two world's professional titles.

Scores of stout hearted youngsters, and they are not all from the west side, of course, will compete in the 16th Golden Gloves tournaments next month. Ross entered the 2d tournament sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE winning the 126 pound championship and then defeating his New York opponent in the intercity matches in Madison Square Garden.

Al Blitstien is one of the west side boys who, this year, hopes to follow successfully the same path Ross took to win a diamond studded golden glove. Al is 17 years old. He has been boxing for nine months and represents Franklin park. He's had 13 bouts in the lightweight class. Jack Truman is his coach.

Has Brother in Army.

Al isn't employed now—his last job was shipping clerk—and he attended Marshall High school for three years. While he did not take part in formal athletics in high school, he has belonged for years to the American Boys' Commonwealth where he has played basketball, soccer, and volley

Don't Be Surprised One Bit If Hawks Get More Bentleys

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Manager Paul Thompson of the Blackhawks, who has been up in western Canada to get a touch of snow and brisk weather and incidentally to do a little talent scouting for the Hawks, may show up any day now with a couple more Bentleys.

Doug, Max, and Reg Bentley, the Saskatchewan brothers who form the Hawks' scoringest line and the only all-brother line in the history of the National Hockey league, have been doing a lot of bragging about their three other athletic brothers and their old man, Bill, who once defeated the great Norval Baptie in some momentous speed event, or something. But much of their boasting was set down as fraternal and filial devotion until the Vogue studio of Drumheller, Alberta, sent along a photograph showing five of the brothers all dressed up in the hockey uniforms of the Drumheller Miners.

Hurry Back, Paul.

Standing there with Doug and Max and Reg were Roy and Scoop. And Roy and Scoop in the picture look just as much like hockey players as the three known quantities. So that's the primary reason we are expecting Manager Thompson back from his scouting trip with Roy and Scoop in tow.

It isn't likely that Jack, the brother not shown in the Drumheller photograph, will come along to play hockey, but he might be put in charge of the green light that failed to blink soon enough to save the Hawks a victory over Detroit last Sunday night. Jack played on a team with Roy, Scoop, Doug, Max, and Reg before Max, now 22, was old enough to compete. But Jack's 37 now, just a little too seasoned to break into major league hockey.

They're All Look-alikes.

The picture shows that Roy and Scoop look like each other and look like Doug and Max, and to a lesser degree resemble the chunkier Reg. They all have straight black hair as one of the factors in the family resemblance but don't get back on the Indian theme that's had some circulation.

The three Bentley brothers have no quarrel with Indians and have come to have a deep regard for Chief Black Hawk, the wily old brave for whom their team was named. But they are not Indians. Their pappy is an Englishman from England and their ma is a Canadian born Scot.

Play Canadiens Tomorrow.

Whether Roy and Scoop show up or not, the three Bentleys will play against the Montreal Canadiens in Chicago Stadium tomorrow night and yesterday they spent 60 minutes of practice, mostly in shooting at the cage. Acting Manager Johnny Gottselig, in fact, devoted almost the entire hearsal to shooting, there having been a grievous falling off in the accuracy department of late.

All of the Bentley brothers are married and each has at least one child and a farm. Soil in Alberta is a little stiff for plowing from October to March, hence all the hockey activity in the family [seven Bentley sisters, Ruth, Jane, Grace, Pearl, Tannis, Florence, and Mary, also play on a hockey team], tho sometimes some of the clan help out Pa in his general store in Delisle, Sask.

Use New Rule.

The Canadiens recently have been taking profitable advantage of a new rule in Canada whereby it was provided that a player does not lose his amateur standing if tried out in one pro game. One such amateur, 18 year old Alex Smart, tried out with the Canadiens when the Hawks were in Montreal last week and scored three goals and an assist. Smart will not be with the Canadiens here Thursday, but two other teen age amateur stars, Glen Harmon and Tom Mahaffy, will have their one game fling.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 19 (AP).—The Boston Bruins stretched their National Hockey league lead over the Detroit Red Wings to seven points by beating Montreal's aggressive Canadiens, 5 to 2, tonight before a 9,399 crowd in the Boston Garden.

The Bruins, who generally get rolling early on their home rink, were held scoreless during the first period by Goalie Paul Bibeault. Early in the second period, Flash Hollett, who started and ended the Boston scoring, gave his side an unassisted goal. Late in the final, he batted in the rebound after Bibeault came up with a sensational stop on Murph Chamberlain's close-up try.

Bruins Step Out.

Don Gallinger put the Bruins into a 2 to 0 lead late in the second period. Early in the final, Toe Blake, a thorn in Goalie Frankie Brimsek's side all night, ruined his shutout hopes by registering an angle shot from close range.

Art Jackson, aided by Bill Cowley, the circuit's high point maker, and Herb Cain, who registered without assistance, lengthened the Bruins' lead to 4 to 1 before Johnny Mahaffey provided the second Montreal tally, after soloing from his own blue line. Then Hollett's second goal concluded the scoring.

Check Canadien Comeback.

Tonight's defeat dampened the recently revived spirit of the Canadiens. They had won four of their last five games. They now remain three points behind the fourth place Chicago Blackhawks.

CONCORDIA LOSES TO ILLINOIS TECH IN EXTRA PERIOD

Illinois Tech and Concordia of River Forest battled into an overtime yesterday before Tech emerged the victor, 44 to 42, in a basketball game in the armory at 34th street and Wentworth avenue. It was Illinois Tech's second victory over Concordia and its fourth triumph in nine games. The score at the half was 18 to 18 and the regulation game ended in a 37 to 37 tie. Ray Lagodney, Tech center, made the winning points in the last seconds of the overtime.

PHEASANTS NEED FOOD ON LAGOON NEAR GLENCOE

The Glencoe police department yesterday asked north shore sportsmen to help in distributing grain to a flock of starving pheasants in the Skokie lagoon park west of that suburb. The police department reported that between 50 and 100 birds were in the flock which is suffering from lack of food and the severe temperatures.

C.D.G.A. PREPARES TO GEAR GOLF TO WAR ACTIVITIES

Considers Possibilities of Major Tournaments.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Keep golf alive on the basis of gearing it to the war.

The above will be the principal objectives of the Chicago District Golf association in 1943. This was made plain last night in the first board meeting of the year for the game's governing organization in this area. President Thomas G. McMahon of Skokie and his associates indicated that they are facing one of the most problem filled seasons in C. D. G. A. history, but they feel that they can repeat the job which made Chicago the capital of golf last year.

Consider Tournaments.

The association revealed that it is willing to hold another tournament similar to the Chicago Open and Hale America if it can be practically fitted to the times and if a war relief fund will be benefited. Larry Rutherford of Medinah, C. D. G. A. vice president and chairman of the Chicago Open tournament committee, was asked to conduct an investigation of such war relief sources as might be aided by such a tournament.

One of the main problems of the year will be transportation, even tho many Chicago district clubs are fortunately situated in being located near public trasportation facilities. This task has been delegated to Melville Keim of Northmoor, chairman of the war service committee, a group which embraces two tasks. One of these is the arrangement of playing privileges for service men. Last year, thru the U. S. O. service center, 35 C. D. G. A. member clubs invited soldiers, sailors, and marines to play on their courses, an invitation which resulted in nearly 4,000 weekly rounds for service men.

Suggest Tourney Sites.

President McMahon also appointed Robert Emery of Big Foot chairman of the tournament committee, succeeding F. M. [Ted] Quinn, who continues as secretary. In the absence of Emery and Quinn, F. Ray Bowen of Park Ridge, presented the tournament committee's recommendations for the bulk of the 1943 schedule. These recommendations are subject to the action of the clubs suggested as sites by the committee.

The suggested schedule of sites and events include the Champion of Champions event at Park Ridge; the pro-amateur annual at Bob O' Link; the Caddy tournament at Westward-Ho; the Junior Open at Ridge; the Junior Closed at Evanston; the Illinois Southpaw at Elmhurst; the Chicago National Amateur at Edgewater; Club Relations day at Skokie, and the Pater-Filius at Midlothian. No definite site was suggested for the Illinois State Amateur, but it was suggested that the tournament be held in a city outside the Chicago area.

In addition to McMahon, Rutherford, Fessenden, Bowen, Keim, and Dr. Mahoney, the meeting was attended by Ross H. Kidston of Glen View; Dr. J. Earl Harris of Olympia Fields; Robert Hulbert of Brookwood, and George Rossitter of Knollwood.

ball. Al lives with his parents at 1136 South St. Louis avenue, not far from the A. B. C. at 13th street and Homan. His father is a manufacturing tailor.

Al has two brothers, one of whom is in the U. S. army and he sees in boxing an opportunity to prepare for the time when he too may be called for service.

Al will report Friday night at Trafton's gymnasium for his preliminary physical examination. All one needs is a glance to tell that this black haired, sturdy youngster is ready for the tournament. He will choose the north side sectional tournament which opens Feb. 3 in the Loyola university gymnasium.

May Choose Tourney.

Boys may select this tournament or the south side tournament which starts Feb. 1 in the St. Sabina gymnasium, 78th street and Racine avenue. Both novice and open division boxers will compete in each of these tournaments but, of course, they fight in their own divisions.

The Catholic Youth Organization boxers have been notified to report for preliminary physical examinations next Tuesday night in the C. Y. O. gym, 31 East Congress street. The final physical examination will be held Jan. 29 in Trafton's gym, 180 West Randolph street.

If a boxer, because of employment, cannot report at one of these examinations he should make a note of it when he sends in his entry. Permission will be granted, in these cases, to take the examination on the first night of the tournament. The parental consent card, if an entrant is under 21 years of age, must be brought at that time.

LOYOLA QUINTET PLAYS GLENVIEW CADETS TONIGHT

Loyola's Ramblers will oppose the Glenview Air Station Air Cadets in Loyola gymnasium at 8:15 this evening in a game headlining a sparse midwestern basketball program. Loyola will be trying for its sixth triumph in 10 starts this season, against a Glenview squad that has won 9 of 12 games.

LEO TEAMS DEAL MOUNT CARMEL DOUBLE DEFEAT

Lion Five Captures Senior Game, 34 to 33.

Leo High school, defending Catholic league senior bracket basketball champion, handed Mount Carmel, a double defeat in the south section race last night on the Lions' floor, the juniors winning, 29 to 20, and the seniors edging out the visitors, 34 to 33. The defeats, first for Mount Carmel in league play, pulled it into a second place tie with Leo in both divisions. Leo led, 20 to 12, at the half in the senior game but a 16 point rally by Mount Carmel in the third period tied the count at 28 to 28. Ed Dawson of Leo was high point man with 12 points.

St. Ignatius scored its first victories in both the junior and senior divisions of the south section race and handed St. Patrick its second straight double defeat. The juniors won, 37 to 21, and the seniors, 33 to 20.

St. Mel dropped Loyola out of first place in north section senior race with an overtime victory, 30 to 27, on the Loyola court. St. Mel also won the junior game, 42 to 30.

St. Philip and St. George of Evanston divided a north section double header. St. Philip won the junior game, 36 to 21, and St. George, the home team, took the senior contest, 36 to 27. It was St. George's third straight senior victory and the first defeat for St. Philip in two games.

Johnny Frederick scored nine points to lead Fenwick of Oak Park to a north section senior victory over De Paul, 29 to 19, after De Paul won the junior contest, 32 to 21.

Comiskey to Give Worlds Busy Evening

BY FRANK MASTRO

Pat Comiskey continued workouts yesterday in the Ringside gymnasium by sparring two rounds with Altus Allen for a 10 round bout against Clayton Worlds in Chicago Stadium Friday. Pat, who is 6 feet 3½ inches tall and weighs 224 pounds, appeared in fine form for the impending contest, which will be his Chicago debut.

Comiskey's cleverness, speed, and hard punching caused observers to wonder why he isn't rated higher in his division.

Hasn't Taken Training Seriously.

Bill Daly, Comiskey's manager, says his protégé has failed to gain a better rating because he hasn't taken his training seriously. Daly cites two occasions when Pat might have become an outstanding contender, if he hadn't neglected his conditioning chores, one in connection with the big fellow's match with Max Baer, the other associated with the Lou Nova bout.

Tho a victory over Baer or Nova would have lifted Comiskey into a championship contest with Sergt. Joe Louis, he failed to take either seriously and as a result was stopped by Max in the first round and was defeated by Nova in 10 rounds.

He's Mended His Ways.

Since being injured in an automobile crash last November, however, Comiskey has mended his ways, according to Daly. If Daly is right, Worlds may be in for a merry time Friday. Pat recently scored a first round knockout over Joe [Big Boy] Carillo in New York. It was his first appearance in a comeback campaign.

Allen is paired with Lem Franklin, who like Altus is a former International Golden Gloves winner, in an additional 10 round encounter on the Stadium card. The card is topped by a 10 rounder involving Lee Savold, stablemate of Comiskey, and Nate Bolden.

Kelvyn Park Knocks Austin Out of Lead

The Kelvyn Park High school seniors eliminated Austin from a first place tie in the City league west section baskeball race yesterday by winning, 41 to 15, on the Austin floor. It was Kelvyn Park's third straight victory and the first loss for Austin in three league games. Pete Coorla of the winners sank 15 points for individual honors.

Tuley rallied in the second half to nose out Foreman, 37 to 36, on the latter's court.

Amundsen went into a first place tie with Schurz in the north section senior division by defeating Senn, 47 to 28, on the latter's floor. The Senn junior team won, 41 to 28.

Roosevelt defeated Sullivan in a north division senior contest, 39 to 30, after the Sullivan juniors had scored their third straight league victory and knocked Roosevelt out of the undefeated class, 39 to 34.

Lake View invaded Taft and handed that school a double trimming in the north section race, the juniors winning, 40 to 37, and the seniors, 44 to 40. Von Steuben gained a double victory over Steinmetz on the latter's court, the juniors, 48 to 31, and seniors, 31 to 21. Senior lineups:

MANLEY, PHILLIPS JUNIORS REMAIN TIED FOR FIRST

Wells Moves Up in West Section.

Manley and Phillips High schools remained in a tie for first place in the City league central section junior basketball race as each gained its third straight victory yesterday. Manley disposed of Gage Park, 61 to 45, and Phillips beat Lindblom, 46 to 29. Marlib, a forward, led Manley's attack with 14 points while Percy Turner scored in 16 for Phillips.

Kelly won its first central section junior victory and at the same time handed Tilden Tech, defending section champion, it second defeat in three games, 31 to 27, on the Tilden court. Paced by Mike Quinn who accounted for 12 points, Kelly led at the half, 15 to 10.

Wells Ties for Lead.

Harrison invaded Du Sable and gained a central section junior victory, 50 to 36. Phil Zimmerman led Harrison with 19 points.

Wells went into a tie with Marshall for first place in the west section junior race with 69 to 24 victory over Washburne on the victor's court. It was Wells' third straight league victory. Wally Mroz, Ed Klodzinski and Larry Bousk led the Wells attack.

Parker defeated Calumet twice in the south section, the juniors winning 40 to 28 and the seniors, 46 to 23. Tayler led Parker's attack in the junior game, with 22 points and Bob Windich paced the seniors, scoring 23 points. Junior lineups:

ICKES RESTRICTS GAS STATIONS TO 72 HOURS A WEEK

That or 'Never Close' Basis Ordered.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—The hours of operation of gasoline service stations thruout the country were placed under restrictions today by Petroleum Administrator Harold L. Ickes.

The order, which is effective Saturday, requires filling stations to operate on one of two schedules:

1. A station may stay open not more than 72 hours a week and for not more than 12 hours a day. Under this ruling an operator may do business six days a week for 12 hours a day or less, or he may stay open seven days a week if the total does not exceed 72 hours.

2. If a station proprietor wants to remain open for more than 72 hours a week he must operate on a "never close" basis—24 hours a day, seven days a week.

"Never Close" Ones for Trucks.

Under the latter alternative, however, stations operating on a roundthe-clock basis may sell to motorists with A, B, and C gasoline rations for only 12 hours a day, six days a week. The purpose of allowing continuous operation, officials said, is to keep open "truck stations" serving commercial vehicles with "T" rations.

Deputy Petroleum Administrator Ralph K. Davies said the purpose of today's order is to save man power and to help stations to reduce operating costs in the face of curtailed business because of gasoline rationing. Many stations have already curtailed their hours because of reduced business.

Arrangements Variable.

If a dealer elects to operate 72 hours a week he must maintain this schedule for at least seven consecutive days before he may change to the continuous operation basis.

If he elects at first to operate on a 24 hours a day basis he must keep this schedule for 30 days before changing to the 72 hour a week basis.

A station operating under the 12 hours a day maximum may open and close during the day to "spread" its hours, but cannot divide its operations into periods of less than two hours under the regulation.

CURB "NO SURPRISE" HERE.

Chicago gasoline dealers were generally "not surprised" by the new 72 hour week and 12 hour daily sales restriction. The sales manager of a distributing company said many stations already have been operating on a 12 hour daily basis. The sales head of another company said stations "are on their own and operate as they please" without regulation from distributors.

DEALERS WARNED TO REFUSE LOOSE COUPONS FOR GAS

Warnings against the expected illegal use of gasoline ration coupons in the Chicago area following thefts of morethan 1½ million gallons worth of coupons in the last month were issued last night by Michael F. Mulcahy, Chicago metropolitan area director of the office of price administration.

1. Don't sell a drop of gasoline unless you have determined that the license number of the automobile or truck coincides with the number on the ration book.

2. Be sure the coupons are torn from the book and are not carried loose.

3. Be sure the license number is written on the back of each coupon before you deliver the gasoline.

Mulcahy reminded gasoline dealers that their carelessness or haste will not exempt them from prosecution.

Determined to prevent further burglaries of ration board stocks of coupon books, Mulcahy sent 10 inspectors from the central OPA office to collect all books exceeding one day's requirements.

LEGAL SENTENCE IS ORDERED FOR DILLINGER'S AID

Arthur [Fish] Johnston, former contact for the Dillinger gang, who was sentenced to not less than three nor more than six years' imprisonment last April after his conviction for receiving stolen property, must be resentenced because the definite sentence parole act has been invalidated, the Illinois Supreme court held yesterday. His case was remanded to the Cook county Criminal court. The Supreme court held he was legally convicted of buying $3,000 worth of furs from three young thieves for $450. As a result, Johnston faces an indeterminate term of 1 to 10 years.

ODT WILL CLAMP LID ON OUTLAW AND RENTED CARS

Non-Licensed Taxis to Lose Gas Ration.

The lid on taxicab and rented car operations in the Chicago area will be screwed tight to prevent illegal or extravagant tire wear, the local transport division of the office of defense transportation disclosed yesterday.

Certificates of war necessity will be suspended on all outlaw taxicabs which do not have city licenses to operate, the ODT asserted. Without the certificate, a cab operator will be denied gasoline and tire replacements by the office of price administration.

License Essential for Operation.

In all instances where the applicant cannot submit proof that he has paid the required license fees he will be denied a certificate to operate.

Issuance of temporary gasoline rations to taxicab operators has been halted by the OPA. During December those operators who had not paid their city license fees were able to obtain gasoline supplies by applying to their local rationing boards.

John Szumnarski, city public vehicle license commissioner, and his deputy, Edward J. Gorman, said that numerous jitney cabs operated on the south side and on the rim of the city were outlaws, not having obtained city cab licenses.

Outlaws Denied Gasoline.

"We have four policemen and three inspectors working on the south side to nab these outlaw jitneys," Szumnarski said. "The ODT and OPA are helping us stamp out this practice by withholding gasoline allotments. Under ODT rules, no one may operate a cab who did not have a city cab license last Sept. 1."

ODT officials said they had recommended to their Washington office a tightening of restrictions on the use of rented cars.

PRISONER GONE; POLICE VETERAN TO FACE TRIAL

Lt. Thomas Sheridan of the North avenue station, a veteran of 28 years' police service and winner of 23 creditable mentions and extra compensations, will go on trial today before the civil service commission on charges of inefficiency and neglect of duty.

It is charged that a parolee in Lt. Sheridan's custody escaped and he failed to report the matter. The parolee, now being sought, is John Gapinski, alias Gabinski, 1920 North Oakley avenue, who has served terms in Pontiac and Joliet prisons for larceny and burglary.

On Nov. 16 Mrs. Charles C. Boniakowski, 2239 Cortland street, reported that a man had seized her near her home. Policeman Kevin Ryan and a squad arrested Gapinski and turned him over to Lt. Sheridan. The prisoner vanished soon after. Capt. Charles McGurn preferred the charges against Lt. Sheridan.

HIT-RUN DRIVER CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of manslaughter yesterday at an inquest into the death of Frederick Paul Apel, 55 years old, 2617 Sheffield avenue, a German born alien, who was struck Dec. 25 by a hit and run driver in front of 1425 North Halsted street, and hurled beneath an oncoming street car. The jury blamed the driver, and ordered the police to find him.

Yesterday was the fourth consecutive day without an automobile fatality in Chicago and Cook county. The coroner's office reported the 1943 toll clock had not been reset since last Friday night, when the death of the 29th victim was recorded. Three of this year's fatalities occurred in the county outside Chicago.

Up to 4 p. m., 617 persons had been injured in Chicago traffic accidents since Jan. 1.

Memorial Service Sunday for R. E. Stageman, Flyer

Memorial services for Pilot Officer Richard E. Stageman, 23 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer H. Stageman, 7042 Indiana avenue, will be held at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon in Immanuel Lutheran church, 70th street and Michigan avenue. The Square post of the American Legion, of which his father is a member, will assist in the services. Pilot Officer Stageman was killed during an RAF raid over Hamburg, Germany, last July 28. He enlisted in the royal Canadian air force on April 10, 1941, and trained at Regina, Sask. He received his wings on Nov. 21, 1941. Young Stageman was a graduate of Tilden Technical High school.

FILE TAX SUITS TO COLLECT ON 5 MILLION DEBT.

Foreclosures Precede Sale by County.

Involuntary foreclosure suits against 158 pieces of property on which a total of more than 5 million dollars in taxes and penalties has accrued have been filed in the last few days by the state's attorney's office, acting in behalf of the Cook county board.

John T. Fitzgerald, assistant state's attorney who prepared the suits, said that he had another 100 parcels of real estate on which to foreclose, and that the petitions would be ready in a short time. The properties are in all parts of the city.

The largest suit was listed as against the United Fig and Date company at 141 West North Water street—$428,000, of which $229,000 represents taxes and the rest penalties. Another building at 201-9 North Wabash avenue was listed as owing, with penalties, $317,000, and one at 188 North Clark street as being $197,000 in arrears.

Some 15 Years in Arrears.

Virtually all the properties, Fitzgerald said, are in use and producing revenues. Taxes in some instances have been delinquent since 1928. The plan is to obtain court orders for the sale of these parcels of real estate and have them auctioned to the highest bidder.

There have been indications that the county board, which in past years has adopted unbalanced budgets and is facing the dire necessity of economizing this year, must depend on delinquent tax collections to match its budget needs. In 1942, however, the delinquent tax receipts were estimated at nearly three millions more than the collections.

Commissioner Frank Bobrytzke said yesterday that there were only two ways in which the county can get more income—by an increase in the back tax collections or by action of the state legislature. The legislature, he added, probably would not be helpful.

Would Forestall Chiseling.

"I think we can get our budget down to 18½ millions," he said, "and increase the back tax collections enough to make a revenue balance [anticipated revenue has been placed at $17,800,000]. "To do that the board ought to continue its agreed foreclosure suits, but make the system chisler proof and based on the ability of the property owner to pay."

Bobrytzke mentioned the acceptance of a $100,000 bid on the Illinois Women's Athletic club as an illustration. The sale settled a tax bill of more than $550,000. That building, he said, had revenues of $100,000 a year and should have been able to make substantial payments on its debt.

DEATH SENTENCE SET ASIDE; TRIAL TERMED UNFAIR

Bruno Jackymiak, 23, years old, accused of killing two Mexicans in a south side tavern robbery last Feb. 8 and sentenced to die for one of the murders, did not receive a fair trial because prosecutors asked improper questions about his draft status, the Illinois Supreme court ruled yesterday. He is under a 199 year sentence for the other slaying.

In setting aside his conviction and death sentence for the murder of Raymond Besserra the court, in its opinion, said: "It seems incredible that a prosecuting attorney should so far forget the duty imposed upon him as to adopt such methods in an endeavor to prejudice the jury."

The prosecutors, Edmund Grant and Clement Cody, assistant state's attorneys, disappointed by the 199 year sentence for the murder of Jesus Hurtado, the other victim, brought him to trial for Besserra's slaying.

RATION BOARD 40-13 MOVES.

Local war price and rationing board 40-13 [13th ward] has moved to 3946 63d street from 3308 63d street, Michael F. Mulcahy, Chicago metropolitan area director for the office of price administration, said yesterday.

ARREST MOTHER WHO ABANDONED 2 OF 3 CHILDREN

Mrs. Lichtenwalter first complained to police last Thursday that her husband was in the army and she could not support her three children on her $72 a month allotment. They sent her to a settlement house. Monday night she sent Richard into the police station with a note. Richard said his mother was outside with the baby. When police went to the door they found the baby in a perambulator, but the mother was gone.

Patricia Ann appeared at Mrs. Jeske's home with a note telling of Mrs. Lichtenwalter's hardships in supporting the children and expressing hope that Mrs. Jeske would care for the little girl. Police suspected Mrs. Lichtenwalter was still in the neighborhood. They apprehended her at her mother's home after she followed the daughter to see if she was taken into the home.

STOCK MARKET REGISTERS FIRST LOSSES IN WEEK

Reacts After Rise to Highs Since October, 1941.

New York, Jan. 19 (AP).—Stocks reacted today for the first time in more than a week after holding at the highest levels since October, 1941.

Altho war news and light investment demand continued to bolster sentiment, the long upswing inspired offerings on the theory a "technical correction" was overdue. Mild advancing tendencies at the start were reversed. Closing declines ranged from fractions to a point or more, with a few wider setbacks in evidence.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 0.4 to 42.3, the most substantial decline since Dec. 28.

CHICAGO LIST TURNS DOWN.

Prices turned down on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday after six issues had registered new 1942-'43 highs. Of the six, only Consolidated Oil and National-Standard were able to close higher, and their gains were limited to ¼ point. Losing their advances to close unchanged were Cities Service, Commonwealth Edison, Consolidated Biscuit, and Container corporation.

RAIL BONDS DECLINE.

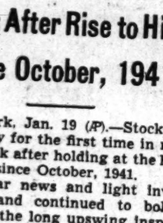
Other sections of the market were only mildly affected, and industrial and foreign groups had many firm to steady spots at the close. The Associated Press average of 20 rails lost 0.5 to 66.4.

HENRY G. RITER ELECTED HEAD OF SECURITIES MEN

Henry G. Riter III., senior partner of Riter & Co., New York City, yesterday was elected chairman of the National Association of Securities Dealers at the annual meeting of the board of governors in Chicago. Riter succeeded H. H. Dewar of San Antonio, Tex.



Henry G. Riter III.

Lawrence B. Woodard of Minneapolis and E. W. Willard of Denver were elected vice chairmen of the association. F. E. Bosson of Hartford, Conn., was elected chairman of the finance committee.

The board approved plans for an annual examination of the business practices of the association's 2,300 members.

Mercantile Bank Elects Two New Vice Presidents

T. J. Clark, assistant vice president, and R. D. Beckett, trust officer, were elected vice presidents of the Mercantile National bank yesterday at the annual meeting of directors. Edward Rybicke, William J. Sherry and Harry J. Timmins were appointed assistant cashiers.

INCOME OF MINORS.

How is the income of a child taxed under the 1942 income tax law? How does a minor's income affect the credit claim for dependency filed by the parents?—R. D.

Answer: The income of a minor must be included in the income tax return of the parent unless his earnings are over $500 or he has become "emancipated" from parental authority.

If a child has income thru salary, property, trust funds, or similar sources that total $500 or more he must file or have filed for him a regular income tax return. The law regarding emancipation of children varies in different states, and the facts of each case determine whether or not the child's income should be included in that of the parent.

A parent is assumed to have the right to the earnings of its child unless proof is given to the contrary. A parent may voluntarily surrender the legal right to the income of a child but he must be able to prove he has done so.

Under the law a minor is one who has not yet reached full legal age. In some states both men and women come of age at 21, but in others the legal age for men is 21 and 18 for women.

Even tho a child has income of his own the parent may still claim the dependency tax credit if the parent furnished the chief support of the child during the year.

LIQUIDATION.

I understand the Chesapeake corporation of Maryland has completed liquidation of its common stock. What were the final payments?—D. B.

Answer: The Chesapeake corporation of Baltimore, Md., a holding company which dealt in railroad securities, was formally dissolved in 1939. The final liquidating payment on the 1,799,745 outstanding shares of common stock was recently authorized for payment Dec. 28, 1942. Stockholders received 26.9 cents in cash and one share of Chesapeake and Ohio Railway common stock for each 100 shares of stock held.

The Chesapeake and Ohio shares issued were dated Dec. 3, 1942, thus entitling new stockholders to an extra dividend of 50 cents paid Dec. 26, and the regular payment of 75 cents paid Jan. 2, 1943.

RETAILERS TELL PLANS TO PUSH '43 ADVERTISING

Held Duty to Get All Trade Possible.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Spokesmen for some of Chicago's large merchandising enterprises declared yesterday that their companies regard it a war duty to seek all the business they can get, and that they will use advertising and other business building methods to encourage sales so they can keep workers employed, customers supplied, and a stream of tax money flowing into the federal treasury.

Outlines of steps which the companies plan to take were presented in a series of speeches at a forum session on the second day of the Chicago men's and boys' wear market. The session was held in the Merchants and Manufacturers club in the Merchandise Mart, and was attended by buyers from all parts of the nation.

David Mayer Jr., president of Maurice L. Rothschild, told the buyers that "it may take nerve" to get business this year, but he said "nerve is the thing you have to have in 1943."

Sees Obligation to Fight.

After listing the retailer's major problems of finding goods to maintain 1942 volume, new lines to replace those curtailed by the war, and of getting his share of the available business, Mayer said:

"I can't tell you how to meet all of these situations, but I can tell you what Maurice L. Rothschild intends to do.

David Mayer Jr.

Sidney J. Natkin.

"We owe an obligation to our employés, so we're going to fight for every bit of business we can get, to keep them busy and make it possible for them to hold up their end in America's great victory drive. We owe an obligation to our customers, so we intend to carry adequate stocks. And we intend to tell our customers about it in our advertising, just as we have always done. We owe an obligation to our country, so we intend to do all the business we can and earn all the money we can on good value giving, to pay as large a share of the war tax as possible.

Cites Educational Value.

"If you don't get every speck of business you can, if you don't step into new fields, you won't have any business to pay taxes on."

Sidney J. Natkin, assistant general manager of Mandel Brothers, said that advertising not only will continue to push for sales volume, but will help win the war.

"It will help win by continuing to promote, in an educational, forceful and reason-why manner, the sale of war bonds and stamps, the greatest bargain in the world; by cooperating in publicizing the methods by which our government wants the consumer to conserve fuel, food, rubber, clothes, power, and health.

"Top thinking retailers and manufacturers who appreciate the value of a good name will continue to advertise, if only to remind the consumer that they make and sell a fine product, and that theirs still is a name to remember in the days ahead."

Victor E. Johnson, merchandise manager for the boys' department of Wieboldt's, said many firms do not appreciate the volume and profit possibilities of boys' clothing lines.

Asks Larger Production.

J. T. Meek, executive secretary of the Illinois Federation of Retail Associations, warned the merchants against thinking that the inventory control order will solve merchandise shortages.

The order merely is aimed at attaining equitable distribution of available goods, Meek said.

"No attention is being paid," he said, "to how to get more of what we need. If this is to be a long war, our supply of civilian goods will be exhausted. Goods are needed. There is nervousness among those who appreciate the danger of concentrating on how to distribute fairly what we have, when we should be worrying about and striving for a larger stock pile of civilian goods while there is yet time to make these goods."

Shortages are the retailers' gravest problem, Meek said, adding: "Give our retailers goods, and they will overcome all other problems."

Hart Schaffner Year's Profit Best Since '29

Last year was the most profitable since 1929 for Hart, Schaffner & Marx, Meyer Kestnbaum, president, disclosed yesterday in his annual report, but he cautioned stockholders not to expect a continuation of high profits.

The Chicago and New York clothing manufacturer and its subsidiaries had combined net income of $1,233,660 in the fiscal year ended Nov. 30, 1942, compared with $831,761 in the 1941 fiscal year. The earnings were equivalent to $8.22 a share, against $5.86.

"The steady increase in the number of men in the armed forces reduces the need for civilian clothing," warned Kestnbaum. "We may expect an extension of the controls which are necessary in time of war and that these will inevitably have a depressing effect on business."

Reviews 1942 Operations.

As in World War I, Hart Schaffner & Marx is making uniforms for army and navy officers, Kestnbaum said. He gave stockholders this review of 1942 operations:

"A general wave of consumer buying and a resultant demand for merchandise on the part of retailers stimulated shipments during the early portion of the year. In subsequent months retailers have adopted a much more conservative attitude. Bookings for spring, 1943, are running substantially below last year."

Since the close of the fiscal year the company has repaid 1½ million dollars of bank loans, reducing the current balance to 1 million, Kestnbaum said.

R. J. Reynolds Profit Cut.

Sales of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company were the largest in its history during 1942, but increased taxes reduced net earnings to $19,860,231, equal to $1.98 a share on common and class B common stock. Profit in 1941 was $23,239,386, or $2.32 a share. Sales rose $46,191,931 last year to $369,212,044. Federal and state income taxes amounting to $24,802,818 were $6,310,339 more than in 1941.

James A. Gray, president, told stockholders the company at the end of 1942 owed banks $18,750,000 in connection with the 75 million dollar revolving credit arranged last June to finance higher cost inventories.

Senate Group Votes to Keep Special Silver Committee

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19 (AP).—The senate banking committee today voted to maintain the special silver committee of nine western senators, which, under the chairmanship of Sen. Elmer Thomas [D., Okla.], consults with the treasury on the administration of the 1934 act authorizing the treasury to buy foreign silver.

SMALL STORES SAY OPA POLICY DESTROYS THEM

Tell House Members Their Problems.

Washington, D. C., Jan 19 (AP).—The senate small business committee heard testimony today that office of price administration rationing and "price squeeze" policies were threatening many small grocers, druggists, and restaurant proprietors with loss of their business.

Witnesses for the National Association of Retail Grocers, National Association of Retail Druggists, and the National Restaurant association testified.

Rose Marie Kiefer, secretary-manager of the grocers' organization, blamed "burocratic bungling" as a factor in shortages in the national food supply.

Profit Squeeze Assailed.

Rowland Jones, spokesman for the druggists, said administration of price controls was creating "a continual squeezing of retail profit margins," that must "stop now if independent retailers are to be preserved in the distribution field."

U. Grant Sain, of Columbus, Ohio, representing the restaurant men, said his group was "not at all pleased" with rationing to date and expressed hope "that the ultimate food rationing program will not be mishandled as was the rationing of gasoline."

Mrs. Kiefer told the committee that "hundreds of communities thruout the country have already been for weeks without adequate supplies of meat and dairy products."

Asks Where Big Output Went.

"Where has the food gone?" she asked, pointing out that more was produced in 1942 than ever before. "What has become of it?"

The shortages, she testifies, reading from a prepared statement, were induced "in part, at least, by burocratic bungling and a refusal on the part of the office of price administration to accept as a working principle that neither producers nor distributors can reasonably be expected to continue to operate at a loss."

Rep. Dirksen Urges HOLC Dissolution to Cut Spending

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19 (AP).—Dissolution of the Home Owners Loan corporation was asked today by Rep. Everett M. Dirksen [R., Ill.], who declared the agency no longer serves any useful purpose. In introducing the legislation, he explained this would cut nonessential spending. Established in 1933, HOLC extended 1,017,825 loans on homes totaling $3,093,451,321.

People and Events

Howard E. Buhse, manager of Hornblower & Weeks' investment department, has been admitted to general partnership, the firm announced yesterday. Buhse has been employed by the company since 1929. He is a member of the Republican state finance committee, and the Bond Club of Chicago.

Howard E. Buhse.

Maurice Goldblatt, president of Goldblatt Brothers, was added to the directorate of the Wabash Avenue District association at its annual meeting yesterday. Louis Etshokin, treasurer of L. Fish Furniture company, was elected to the directorship formerly held by Milton Fish.

James R. Buck, former manager of the Otis & Co. Chicago office, has become associated with Daniel F. Rice & Co. as manager of the investment department.

Fred H. Clutton has been reappointed secretary of the Chicago Board of Trade. William B. Bosworth was renamed assistant secretary.

Frederick D. Corley, president of Marshall Field & Co., announced the resignation of W. H. St. Clair, manager of Frederick & Nelson, Seattle department store owned by Field. St. Clair, who is retiring, will be succeeded by William S. Street.

Chicago Rated Fortunate on Man Power

Chicago is one of the more fortunate cities with respect to man power, William H. Spencer, regional director of the war man power commission, told members of the Investment Analysts Club of Chicago at a luncheon yesterday. There is a potential balance between demand and supply of man power in the Chicago area, he said, if industry hires large numbers of women and removes all restrictions against the hiring of Negroes and "minority" groups.

Six months from now the situation may be different, Spencer cautioned. He added that plants located on the city outskirts may experience problems of local transportation.

By the end of 1943 the number of workers in nonessential occupations will drop to 19 million, compared with 29 million in 1941, said Spencer.

Man Power Needs Outlined.

Between 4 and 4½ million persons will be required to replace men who will go from agriculture and industry to the army and navy this year, and the number of war workers will increase by 3 to 3½ millions, he said. Agriculture, he asserted, must continue to have 8 million year around workers if it is to meet food requirements of the men in military service, civilians, and lend-lease.

Importation of workers may become necessary in areas where there has been too large a concentration of war industries, but this must be done only under the control and guidance of the WMC, Spencer said. It may be necessary also for the commission to transfer as many as 2 to 3 million workers from less essential activities to war industries, he added.

Enforcement Power Lacking.

Denying that the commission and its agencies now have any real enforcement powers, Spencer said: "Aside from selective service we have no power to crack down on anybody. Criticism of the commission has been that it is too representative and too democratic, and not dictatorial enough." Stabilization agreements reached in certain areas to reduce pirating and hoarding of skilled workers do not freeze workers in their jobs, he declared.

"If we are unable to accomplish the objectives of mobilization and stabilization on a voluntary basis," Spencer concluded, "there will be strong pressure for the enactment of one of the national service bills already presented in congress."

5 YEAR DIVIDEND WAIT BY NICKEL PLATE FORECAST

Cleveland, O., Jan. 19 (AP).—Nickel Plate railroad preferred and common stock holders need expect no dividends for at least another five years, President John W. Davin indicated today.

Saying that the Chesapeake and Ohio subsidiary has 21 million dollars of bonds maturing around Oct. 1, 1947, Davin told newspaper men: "I think we've got to get the financial structure straightened out first before we can pay dividends and that is the policy of the present management. If we don't meet those obligations you know where we are headed —into reorganization."

The 6 per cent preferred stock is in arrears $69 a share.

Davin announced that the Nickel Plate's revenues were $88,742,000 for 1942.

GLOBE COAL HEAD ELECTED C. & O. VICE PRESIDENT

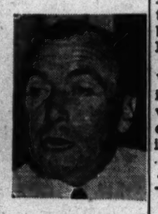
Walter J. Tuohy, president of the Globe Coal company, yesterday was elected vice president of the Chesapeake and Ohio railway and will have charge of coal traffic. He succeeds John W. Davin, who was elected president of the Nickel Plate. Tuohy, who is 41 years old, will report on his new job in Cleveland Monday. A successor to Tuohy as president of the Globe company will be selected in about a week. The Globe company was acquired by Pittston company interests, affiliated with the Chesapeake and Ohio, from the late George F. Getz.

GIVE ARMY MAN SMALLER PLANTS WAR JOBS POST

Col. Robert Johnson Replaces Holland.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—The appointment of Col. Robert Johnson, an army ordnance officer, as vice chairman of the war production board in charge of the smaller war plants division and chairman of the Smaller War Plants corporation, was announced today by the White House.



Col. Robert Johnson.

The announcement said Col. Johnson is being transferred from the New York ordnance district at the request of WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson. Johnson was president and chairman of Johnson and Johnson, surgical dressing manufacturer, before he was commissioned by the army last July.

Wants More to Small Firms.

The appointment was made, according to a WPB spokesman, in an effort to help step up the placement of war contracts with small companies. The spokesman said Nelson believes WPB must place increasing reliance on small business for production of instruments, valves, and other components which are proving bottlenecks in synthetic rubber, high octane gasoline, escort ships, and aircraft production programs.

Col. Johnson will supplant Lou E. Holland of Kansas City, Mo., WPB deputy chairman, both as head of the smaller war plants division and as chairman of the SWPC, which is authorized to lend up to 150 million dollars to small companies seeking war work.

Nelson has asked Holland, who came to WPB last July, to remain as assistant to Col. Johnson. Holland, who was in the engraving business prior to his appointment to WPB, indicated he would accept.

"I came to Washington to fight for small business and I intend to continue the fight until the battle is won," he said.

Calder Succeeds Kanzler.

Nelson today announced the appointment of Curtis E. Calder of Bronxville, N. Y., as WPB director general of operations to succeed Ernest Kanzler, who resigned yesterday.

Calder thus will hold the chief operating and administrative post in WPB, having supervision over all industry divisions and appeals, but little to do with policy making.

Calder is president of the American and Foreign Power company, large utility holding company, and a director of the National City bank, American Bank Note company, the United States and Foreign Securities corporation and other investment trusts.

Senators Are Warned on Need of More Machines on Farms

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19 (AP).—Two high officials in the food production program today declared farmers need more machinery.

Food Production Administrator M. Clifford Townsend told senate investigators he is "fearful there's no chance" of meeting 1943 production goals without an increase in war production board allotments for farm machinery.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Grove B. Hill asserted farmers needed new machinery equal to 50 per cent of 1940 manufacture, with 38 per cent "the absolute minimum."

Appeal to WPB Chairman.

The WPB allowance of critical materials to provide only 23 per cent of 1940 manufacture has been appealed to Donald M. Nelson, WPB chairman, by Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard.

Joseph L. Weiner, director of the WPB office of civilian supply, told the investigating committee farmers were entering 1943 with "the greatest aggregate quantity of machinery in history."

He testified that altho new machinery production had been cut, repair parts production has been increased. He estimated total 1943 production would be worth $224,100,000, or 74.1 per cent of the average output during 1931-'40.

[Weiner, a New York lawyer, born in Russia, is responsible for the decrease in farm machinery output and is reported to have no record of experience in agriculture.]

Claims Farmers Are Equipped.

The increased production of repair parts was decided on the assumption, he said, that "if we keep existing machinery in operation by increasing available repairs more total machinery will be kept in operation with a given amount of material than if that material were expended in manufacturing new machinery."

Weiner said that with a "few minor exceptions" farmers already have equipped themselves to produce 1943 food goals "thru their extraordinary farm machinery purchases of 1941 and 1942."

Celotex in War Work, Looks to Peace Task

All plants of the Celotex corporation and subsidiary and affiliated companies are working at top speed on war production. However, the management is preparing for the return of peace when the building industry will have the gigantic task of removing the war ravages thruout the world. This report on Celotex activities was made yesterday by Bror Dahlberg, president, at the annual stockholders' meeting.

Describing the postwar outlook as favorable for the company, Dahlberg said that it then will be possible for any one to own a house which will be low in dollar cost but better and more complete than any ever built before.

The building demand which will follow the war, he predicted, will tax the facilities of building material manufacturers. Not only will domestic requirements have to be met but large exports of building materials to Mexico, South America, Europe, and especially the orient are certain, he said.

Dahlberg reviewed the growth of the Celotex corporation — how it started with insulating material and then branched out into other activities to offset rapidly growing competition in its original field.

He reported that the company has been able to continue its growth [sales have risen from $9,126,488 in 1938 to $23,510,363 in 1942] thru the introduction of entirely new products.

He explained that one of these, cemesto, opens an entirely new technique in building because it will make possible the construction of new homes at low cost. He disclosed that the Celotex management does not believe that entirely pre-fabricated houses will ever become popular in this country because of the insistence of Americans on individuality. However, certain parts will be pre-fabricated which will provide short cuts for home building and reduce costs.

ORDERS PENNSYLVANIA ROAD PAY PENNROAD 23 MILLIONS OF LOSS

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 19 (AP).—United States District Judge George Welsh today ordered the Pennsylvania railroad to pay the Pennroad corporation $23,104,565 for losses and damages to Pennroad during 1930-'31 when officers and directors of the Pennsylvania railroad handled Pennroad interests.

Judge Welsh ruled that the Pennsylvania railroad made "improper expenditures for Pennroad," and that the 122,280 present Pennroad stockholders will share in the distribution. A reimbursement of 95 millions of the 137 million dollars handled by Pennsylvania during the two years was asked originally.

MEAT OUTPUT FALLING BELOW HIGH GOAL SET

All Slaughter Down; Prices Up Again.

Meat production this month in packing plants under federal inspection yesterday was disclosed to be falling far below the high goals set by the department of agriculture. A combination of factors contributed to the decline, altho leaders in the packing industry said they are mystified by the failure of hog supplies to increase in view of the December government report supporting the earlier estimate that more than 60 million pigs were farrowed last spring.

Unfavorable weather for farm shipping, the fact that so many cattle were sent to market at light weight last summer and fall because of beef ceilings, the favorable corn-hog price ratio, government assurance that corn prices will not advance more, and the heavy drain of meat animals thru other channels were blamed for the meat output decline.

All Marketing Decreases.

The department of agriculture disclosed that packers under federal inspection at the 27 markets that handle most of the country's meat butchered 2,094,825 hogs during the first two full weeks of this month, a decline of 310,736 head or 12 per cent from last month and 3 per cent less than a year ago.

The two week cattle total of 322,123 head was 7 per cent above a month ago when volume was lowest.

in seven months, but was 15 per cent under last year. Calves were 23 per cent below last month and 22 per cent under a year ago. Sheep and lambs showed a 14 per cent decline from last month, but totaled 18 per cent more than a year ago.

Snow and cold cut the movement from farms still more this week. Twenty leading markets in two days have received only 397,000 cattle, hogs and sheep, compared with 600,000 on Monday and Tuesday last week and 507,000 a year ago.

Prices Reach New Highs.

Prices for all classes of meat animals rose to new high winter levels in yesterday's trading at the Chicago stockyards, and were above the basis warranted by meat price ceilings, packers said.

Light hogs were bid up 10 to 20 cents a hundred pounds, while others sold steady to 10 cents higher. The $15 average, highest since Oct. 21, was $1.55, or 11 per cent, above the low early last month. Best loads brought $15.25, $1.65 over the December low. Both top and average prices set new 23 year January highs.

Further advances of 25 cents sent lambs to highs since June, 1929. The top of $16.50 has been exceeded in only two January markets since 1920.

Steers and yearlings rose 10 to 15 cents to a 24 year January peak and second highest on record for this month. Top steers reached $16.75.

CORN ADVANCES NEAR CEILINGS, BUT WHEAT DIPS

Revival in shipping demand for cash corn sent prices up about 1 cent a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday, the July future selling within 1 cent of its ceiling at 99⅝ cents, while No. 3 yellow sold in the cash market at $1 and No. 4 white at $1.08, both the highest prices permitted under government control.

Part of the upturn in corn was lost in the later trading, largely in sympathy with wheat, but gains of ⅛ to ⅜ cent were retained at the close.

Wheat was firm early, but closed ½ cent lower after scattered selling. Oats finished ⅛ cent higher to ¼ cent lower, and rye was unchanged to ¼ cent higher. Soy beans were ⅜ cent lower to ¼ cent higher in small trade.

FLANNEL SHIRTS CEILING RAISED TO BOOST SUPPLY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19 (AP).—The OPA acted today to bring the cheaper types of cotton flannel work shirts back into the market by giving manufacturers a ceiling increase, effective Jan. 25.

Manufacturers' prices previously were limited to levels of one year ago, but many found it impossible to keep producing any but higher price lines because the ceilings did not reflect increases in cost of materials.

The ceiling increase will again put flannel shirts selling for approximately $1.25 to $1.60 on retail shelves, OPA said, and will restore a fair margin for manufacturers.

CLEARING HOUSE ELECTS ROBBINS NEW CHAIRMAN

Laurence B. Robbins, vice president of the Northern Trust company, yesterday was elected president of the Chicago Clearing House association. He succeeds Bentley G. McCloud, vice president of the First National bank. After the meeting of the association the Clearing House committee elected Howard W. Fenton, chairman of the board of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, as its chairman. Solomon A. Smith, president of the Northern Trust company, was elected vice chairman of the committee.

Stock Suit Against Sperry and Field Glore Dismissed

New York, Jan. 19 (AP).—Federal Judge Simon H. Rifkind today dismissed a stockholder's derivative suit against the Sperry corporation and Field, Glore & Co., stock brokerage concern, for an accounting and recovery of profits realized thru the sale of stock in 1935. The action, involving 401,591 common shares and 115,232 class A common shares of the Curtiss Wright corporation, was instituted by Jules Piccard, a shareholder.

Russians Make New Advance in Drive on Kharkov—Soldiers Parade with Temperature 2 Degrees Below Zero

An Australian army chaplain plants a cross on the grave of a soldier who was killed in the successful assault of Gona, Japanese stronghold on New Guinea.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Two thousand soldiers of the army air force technical training schools march in formal retreat parade in Grant park. The temperature stood at 2 degrees below zero. The retreats now are a daily occurence. They formerly were omitted during difficult weather conditions.
